Lotsch Tells That $25,000 Loan Was For Good of Bank

Former Patent Attorney Says Brooklyn Bank Was to Have Gotten Deposits as Result

Massachusetts Man Paid $39,850 to Manton Aide, He Says

New York, May 24 (AP)—Testimony that a $25,000 loan to former U. S. Circuit Court Judge Martin Manton would "rebound to my benefit" was given in federal court today by John L. Lotsch, one-time patent lawyer and former director of the Fort Greene Bank of Brooklyn.

Lotsch pleaded guilty to the indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice under which Manton now is on trial. He described a meeting in Manton's chambers at which William Fallon was present. Fallon, alleged salesman of Manton's judicial favors, also has pleaded guilty.

Large Deposits

Lotsch testified he was told at the meeting that his bank would receive large deposits from a corporation for which Manton had appointed the receiver, if a loan was made to Manton. The witness said Fallon told him previously that he would like to introduce him (Lotsch) to Manton "because he thought Manton would be of help to me" in any cases before his court "if I could obtain loans for the judge."

A letter from Manton to Lotsch in connection with negotiations for the $25,000 set Manton's worth at "upwards of $750,000."

Testifying for the government yesterday, Alfred F. Reilly, Massachusetts industrialist, said he paid $39,850 to William J. Fallon, described by government counsel as Manton's "bagman" or go-between.

Fallon on Payroll

Reilly testified he had kept Fallon, who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy, on his payroll at $100 a week for almost three years from 1934 and 1937 and during that period won an important patent infringement case before Manton's court. The favorable decision was written by Manton.

The former senior member of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, accompanied to the court room by his wife, sat in frowning silence as the government opened its attack. He bowed his head when Assistant U. S. Attorney Matthias Correa read, over defense protests, the oath Manton took March 18, 1918, when he ascended the bench:

"I, Martin T. Manton, do solemnly swear to administer justice, free of influence, without respect to person, alike to rich and poor."

Francis Nolan, Reilly's general manager, testifying on the nature of the payments to Fallon, said the latter asked and received $500 to buy Manton a box at the 1933 world series, $3,500 to help the judge pay his taxes the same year, and $1,000 to send him on a voyage to benefit his health.

High Wind Causes Barn to Collapse at Delaware County Community

Albany, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—Two widely separated upstate communities counted today one dead and considerable property damage from wind storms.

Kenneth Roe, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Roe, died yesterday when a barn collapsed in a high wind at Franklin, Delaware county.

At Boonville, in Oneida county, the wind blew down a cow barn, injuring Bela Smith.

Damage was more severe in the Franklin storm. There the wind demolished a toolshed, horse barn and a filling station.

Britain Advances New Proposals to Russians

Chamberlain Says He Has Every Reason to Hope Agreement Would Be Reached Soon—Bonnet Returns to Paris From Geneva—Soviet Protests Finnish Plan

(By The Associated Press)

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that Britain was advancing new proposals to Soviet Russia for bringing her into the British-French front.

He said he had "every reason to hope" an agreement would be reached soon, probably by the time Parliament reconvenes June 5 after the Whitsun recess.

Chamberlain's statement came after a two-hour cabinet meeting heard Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax report on his conversations in Geneva with Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky on Russia's demands concerning a British-French-Soviet mutual assistance pact.

In lengthy negotiations Soviet Russia has stood firm in demanding a comprehensive pledge of mutual aid as her price for joining the British-French front.

Halifax Plan

Political sources believed Halifax had recommended to the cabinet a plan which would consider an attack on any one of the three powers—Britain, France or Soviet Russia—an attack on all.

The plan also was expected to provide cooperation for protecting smaller states whose independence would be guaranteed by the three powers.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet returned to Paris from Geneva where he was active as intermediary in bringing agreement between the British and Soviet points of view. He came to report to Premier Daladier on progress France had made in efforts to create the three-power front as a counter-balance to the Rome-Berlin axis.

Russia instructed her representative at Geneva to protest against a plan by Finland and Sweden to fortify the Aaland Islands at the Baltic gateway to the Gulf of Bothnia.

Russian opposition arose after the British and French representatives had said they expected no difficulty in getting league approval for the requested change in the 1921 accord which neutralized the 300 islands.

Soviet Broadcast

But a Soviet broadcast from Moscow last night said the matter was "of the greatest importance to the U. S. S. R. since the fortification of the Aaland Islands might lock the gate of the Gulf of Finland against the Soviet fleet in time of war."

Germany and Italy already have acquiesced in the Swedish-Finnish plan for building fortifications.

In China, 30 British blue jackets withdrew from Pootung, where they had been sent ashore yesterday to protect a British-owned cotton mill.

Japanese protested that the British had no right to land troops since Pootung is Japanese-occupied territory on the east shore of the Whangpoo river opposite Shanghai.

On Flight to New York

Mexico City, May 24 (AP)—Francisco Sarabia, Mexico's ace civilian pilot, took off from Mexico City today on a non-stop flight to New York which he hoped would break the existing record by five hours. Flying a low-winged, 1,000 horsepower monoplane, Sarabia expected to reach New York nine hours after his takeoff at 6:38 a. m., E.S.T. The established Mexico City-New York record, set by Amelia Earhart in 1935, is 14 hours, 19 minutes.

Bergdoll to Arrive

Ellsberg to Disaster

New York, May 24 (AP)—Edward F. Ellsberg, former navy diver who was awarded the navy's distinguished service medal for his work in helping to raise the submarines S-4 and S-51, flew to New England today to take part in the rescue work of the Squalus.

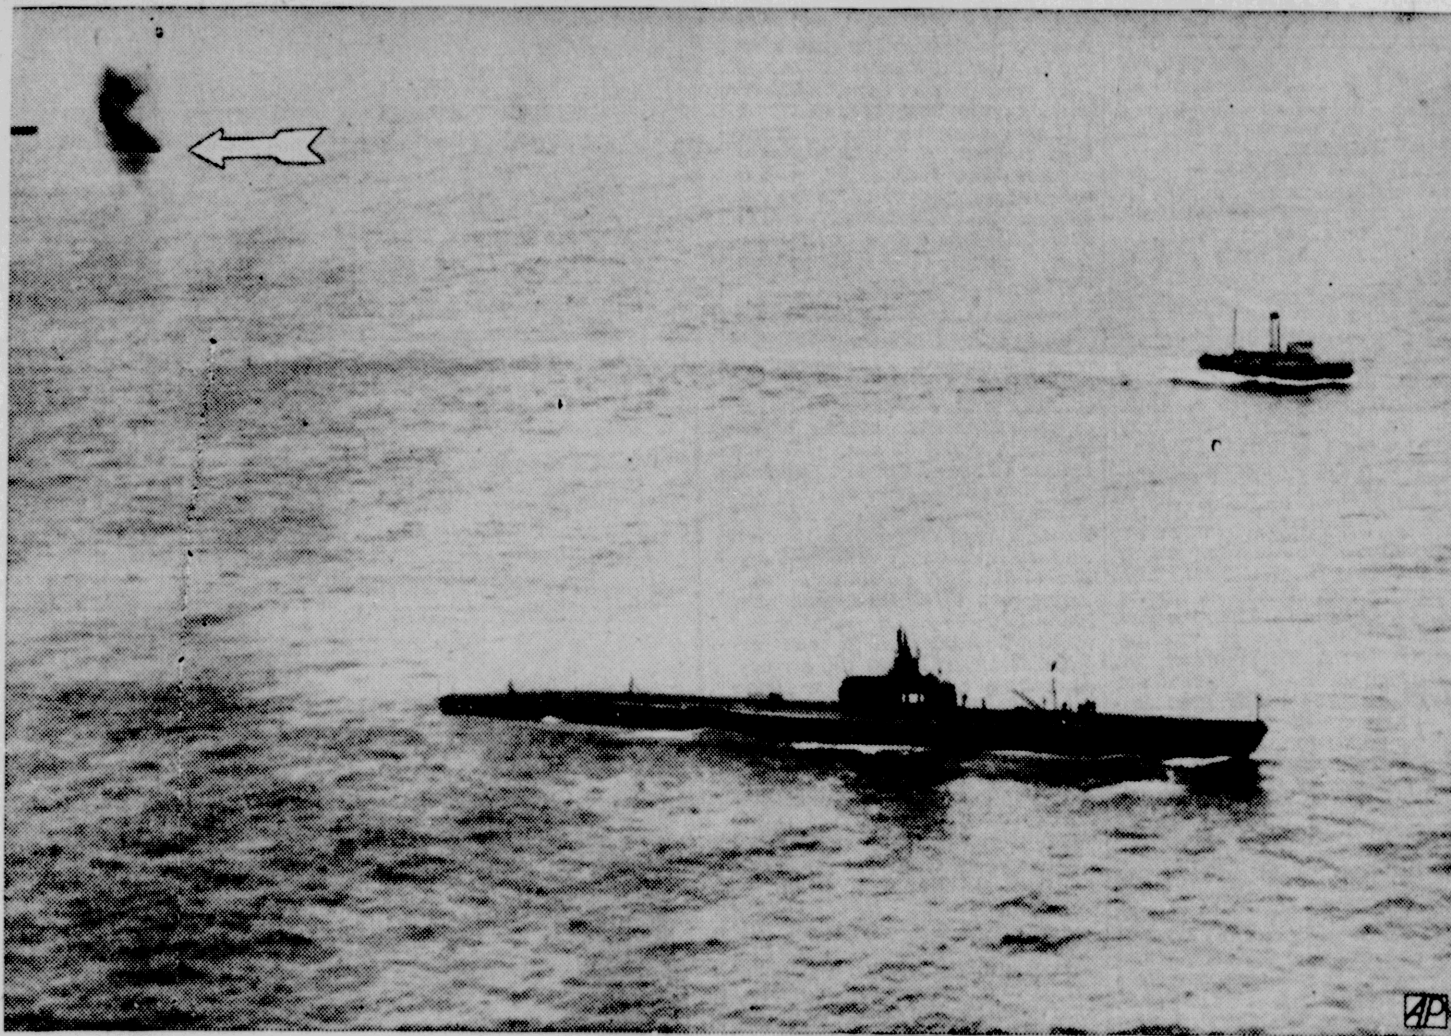

Clipper on Way Home

Southampton, England, May 24 (AP)—The Yankee Clipper, starting the return trip of a flight inaugurating regular service across the North Atlantic, took off at 9:19 a. m. (3:19 a. m., E.S.T.) today, for Marseille, France.

Iacobellis Is to Get Hearing June 1 on Charge of Assault

Mary Squires, 15, Gives Her Story of Accident on O'Neil Street; Bail Continues

Dominic Iacobellis, 22, of 14 Clifton avenue, had his hearing on a third degree assault charge, adjourned to June 1, in police court this morning, when his attorney, John M. Cashin, asked for an adjournment in order to apply to the county judge for a certificate to have the case taken from the jurisdiction of city court and placed in the hands of the grand jury.

Judge Matthew V. Cahill in granting the motion continued Iacobellis's bail of $1,000 to the adjourned day.

Mary Squires, 15, of 62 Flatbush avenue, who was injured in a fall from the running board of Iacobellis's automobile on O'Neil street, was in court today with her mother.

Attended Preview

The girl said she had been to the preview in the Broadway Theatre Friday night and when she was on her way home Iacobellis had called to her and she stepped up on the running board of the car when he asked her for a bite from her ice cream cone.

She said he suddenly started the car and all she could recollect was that she fell off. She suffered a cut over one eye from her eyeglasses that were broken in her fall, and was badly burned about the face and arms.

The girl said that when she struck the pavement she became unconscious and the next thing she recalled was when she regained consciousness several hours later in the Kingston Hospital.

The charge against Iacobellis was lodged by Frank Bunce who went to the hospital with the girl and Iacobellis.

Queen Suffers Eye Injury in Crash

Physicians' Bulletin Says Mary Passed Restless Night; No Arrests

London, May 24 (AP)—Queen Mary suffered injury to one eye when her automobile overturned yesterday and spent a restless night, her doctors said today.

The physicians' bulletin said: "Her Majesty Queen Mary passed a restless night partly due to injury to one eye which although painful is not a source of anxiety."

Her Majesty's general condition is satisfactory.

Attendants at Marlborough House said the queen spent a "moderately quiet night." Some time today King George and Queen Elizabeth were expected to make a trans-Atlantic call so they could hear of the queen mother's condition from her own lips.

Queen Mary will be 72 years old on Friday.

Naval Men Pin Hopes On 4 Rescue Methods

If Diving Bell Fails, Three Other Plans Will Get Tests; Good Weather Is an Essential

Washington, May 24 (AP)—In the event a diving bell proved inadequate to rescue 59 men aboard the submerged submarine Squalus off the New Hampshire coast, naval officials pinned their hopes today on three other rescue plans.

Any of the plans, especially that involving the diving bell, required satisfactory weather conditions.

If the bell could not be attached quickly to the submarine's hull over an escape hatch, officials said, the crew probably would be instructed to ascend to the surface by "water lungs."

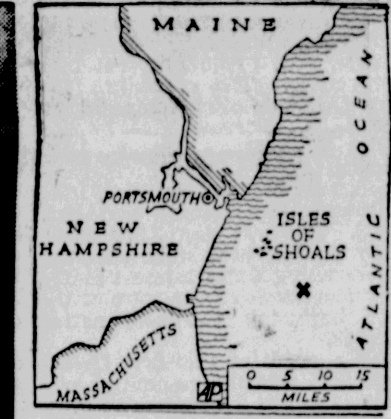

Should the "lungs" prove inadequate, it was explained, divers would attempt to couple airlines to intake valves distributed over the hull. Modern submarines are equipped so that air can be forced into any compartment under pressure.

As a last resort, the rescue crew will attempt to pass chains under the Squalus and bring her to the surface with eight steel pontoons. The pontoon method was used successfully in salvaging the S-51 and S-4 several years ago, but required many weeks of hazardous undersea operations.

The "water lung" is a relatively simple device invented by Lieut. Commander Charles B. Morsen, in charge of the diving operations at the scene of the disaster.

The "lung" is composed of a gas-mask-like device which covers a man's mouth and nostrils and connects with a canvas-rubber bag snapped to the chest. When water floods a compartment, seawater gather around a circular tube connecting with an escape hatch.

When the air pressure in the hatch is increased to equal the (Continued on Page Nine)

County Properties Selling Briskly

Persons Seeking Holdings in Area Show a Brisk Increase This Spring

The demand for Ulster county properties by city people is unusually brisk this spring and several large transactions have been reported by brokers, indicating that the attractiveness of this locality is being appreciated by persons seeking country properties.

The Juvenile House, Inc., of New York city, a charitable organization which has been looking for a suitable camp site through Pennsylvania, Connecticut and in various localities in New York state, has purchased Camp Crawford from Helen M. Crawford of Hoboken, N. J., who operated the camp for seven years as a children's camp.

It is the intention of The Juvenile House to operate the camp as a cooperative camp with the children doing their work. They will start this year with forty and will gradually expand the camp to accommodate several hundred children and adults. The Juvenile House is a charitable organization which operates the Juvenile House at 156th street, Bronx, where they render social service, educational and recreational facilities to more than 1,000 children. The organization is financed by prominent men and women of New York city through annual contributions.

This camp consists of 139 acres of land about a mile from Spillway and borders on the Esopus creek and a large still-water lake. There are at present five buildings and the new owners plan to make (Continued on Page Nine)

Unofficial Report Says 26 Thought Dead in Disaster

Ascent of Diving Bell Is First in U. S. Naval History Such Rescue Effected

Divers Are Busy

U. S. Navy Divers Go Down in Pairs; Won't Tell Survivors

Aboard the U.S.S. Brooklyn off Portsmouth, N. H., (by Wireless), May 24 (P)—The salvage tender Falcon reported today there were "about 30 casualties" in the stricken submarine Squalus.

The message from the Falcon to this Navy cruiser said: "Bell (rescue bell) just surfaced with seven men. Sixteen to go. About thirty casualties."

Portsmouth, N. H., May 24

(P)—Seven men entombed for more than 29 hours in the crippled submarine Squalus were pulled to safety today in a rescue chamber raised through 240 feet of water, and immediate preparations were made for another descent in an effort to save as many as possible of the other 52 men still trapped below.

One of the seven saved was an officer—Lieut. J. C. Nichols of Chicago—and the other six were enlisted men. All appeared in fair condition after their harrowing experience.

A great cheer arose from the crew of the rescue ship Falcon as the dripping rescue bell arose from the sea and was landed gently on the deck of the surface vessel.

All seven were able to step from the bell without help and walk about on the deck, drawing their first free air since the Squalus was trapped on the ocean floor by an open induction valve during a dive at 8:40 a. m. yesterday.

The other six saved first were: Roland Blanchard, a fireman, Hershey, Pa.

Harold C. Prebble, a civilian employed by the navy department, Washington, D. C.

William Isaac, a cook, Washington, D. C.

Theodore Jacobs, signalman, Staten Island, N. Y.

Gerald McLees, electrician's mate, Richmond, Kansas.

Charles Fuhas, machinist's mate, New Salem, Pa.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 24 (P)—A rescue chamber, believed to be carrying the first seven survivors to be taken from the sunken submarine Squalus, started its ascent from the ocean floor at 1:18 p. m. (EDT) today—bringing to freedom men who had been imprisoned for nearly 29 hours under life-or-death conditions from such a depth.

Only the terse message that an actual rescue had been made was given out from the rescue ship Falcon.

Townsend Vote

Pension Measure to Have Its Day in Congress, Perhaps Tomorrow

Washington, May 24 (P)—The Townsend plan, an issue in many congressional districts during three election campaigns, is about to have its day in the House of Representatives.

The manner of its arrival there, perhaps tomorrow, will be unusual but not wholly new.

Ordinarily, House leaders try to sort out and bring to the floor only those measures they want to see passed.

But the House Democratic chiefs are deftly clearing the way for a vote on the pension plan, though they themselves are strongly opposed to its passage.

200 Persons Hear Tributes to Fowler

tee was deeply conscious of the valued services she had rendered through all these years. He said, also that there was another member of the original committee present that evening, the Hon. Philip Elting, who had been named chairman of the committee on legislation and municipal regulation at that first meeting 30 years ago and who still continues to head that committee.

Presents Scrolls

On behalf of the committee Dr. Seelye then presented to Mrs. Reed and to Judge Fowler hand-somely engrossed and bound testimonial scrolls. Later, at the conclusion of the evening's program, those present were asked to add their signatures to these scrolls.

Judge Fowler, responding to Dr. Seelye's tribute, said "I feel that I am on the spot tonight; I fear that I cannot say to you those things which I would like to say. I certainly appreciate more than I can tell you this mark of friendship." Continuing, he remarked that he felt that "much that has been said is exaggeration, but the will to say it, the wish to say it, is more than gratifying to me."

The judge went on to refer to some details of the work of the committee, the many obstacles that had been met, the inadequate equipment of the first tuberculosis camp established in 1909 and of the first "so-called hospital," which opened the next year. He paid tribute to the nurses who labored so faithfully in those early days, handicapped as they were, to the doctors who gave of their services in carrying on the work and to the early workers on the tuberculosis committee. "I accept the words of praise which have been tendered this evening," said Judge Fowler, "as the representative of those earnest faithful workers of earlier days and on behalf of them thank all of you for a wonderful evening." Before concluding his remarks Judge Fowler commended highly Miss Katherine M. Murphy, R.N., county nurse and secretary of the committee, for her very efficient work at all times and her readiness and ability to meet all demands upon her. He noted that to her must be given credit for compilation of the attractive and valuable souvenir booklet, "Thirty Years," which had been presented to each guest and which contains a comprehensive account of the formation of the committee, the work that it has accomplished during the years and its officers and committees.

Mrs. Reed Speaks

Mrs. Reed, the other honored guest of the evening, was called upon to give some account of the beginning of the fight against tuberculosis in Ulster county, through the selling of Christmas seals. It was in Mrs. Reed's home on Crown street that the sale of what then were called Christmas seals had its inception and she was the secretary of the first Red Cross seals committee formed in the county, in 1908.

Mrs. Reed said that her share in the fight began long before she was born, as her father, the late Dr. J. C. Norton, in his youth was sent to the lumber camps at Lake Superior to ward off consumption and became deeply interested in helping others combat the Great White Plague. Later his interest in discovery of some possible remedy for the disease was heightened as he came to know of its ravages in this county, where it gained increased headway from the nature of two most important industries, the quarrying and handling of bluestone and cement. Following his death his wife and daughter continued their interest in measures brought forward to fight the insidious foe.

In the summer of 1908, Mrs. Reed said, they read with interest of the action taken by the state of Delaware, which had followed the example set by Denmark of selling little stamps at Christmas, called Christmas seals, to raise funds for the battle against tuberculosis.

Mrs. Reed consulted with a friend as to the advisability starting the movement here, but was discouraged when the latter was not interested, saying that the physicians had already made arrangements to send some of their patients to Raybrook, which was just becoming well known.

However the mother—she was then 85 years of age—gave encouragement, saying, "There is nothing to stop you and me from beginning this work tonight; it is what your father would have done." The letter was sent, instructions were received as to the method for forming an American Red Cross chapter here and a campaign of education was begun, pending a meeting to be held in the fall.

Finally the meeting was called for the evening of November 30, 1908, at the Y. M. C. A., and instead of the dozen persons necessary to form a Red Cross chapter, there were 30 present. The following paid their $1 dues that evening: The Rev. Dr. R. L. Burtzell, Ira Coutant, Dr. Mary Gage-Day, the Rev. C. G. Ellis, the Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, Miss Marion Hibbard, Dr. Frank Keator, Miss Grace Masten, Dr. A. H. Mambert, Dr. J. B. Nelson, Dr. Mark O'Meara, Mrs. C. N. Reed, Dr. L. K. Stelle, Dr. A. A. Stern, Mrs. J. L. Shurter, Miss Beulah Smith, the Rev. Dr. J. G. Van Slyke and Mrs. Van Slyke. Dues also were received from Mrs. J. C. Norton, Mrs. Augustus Schoonmaker, Dr. William J. O'Leary. There were applications for membership from the Rev. Philip B. Strong and Dr. E. D. B. Loughran. Secretary William F. Hoehn of the Y. M. C. A., though a member of the national society, expressed his intention of joining the local chapter.

Dr. Burtzell was chosen temporary chairman and Mrs. C. N. Reed temporary secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Reed was empowered to secure Christmas seals and arrange for their distribution, with Misses Smith, Masten and Hibbard assisting her.

At the second meeting officers were named as follows: Miss Mary Isabella Forsyth, president; vice presidents, the Rev. R. L. Burtzell, the Rev. J. G. VanSlyke, Mayor Crane, S. D. Coykendall, the Hon. Alton B. Parker, Jay E. Klock, Kingston, Dr. Emerick, Saugerties, Dr. Thomas Keator, Accord; Dr. Wilson P. Fuller, Kerhonkson; Dr. Alice Divine, Ellenville; Dr. G. W. Ross, Port Jervis; the Rev. Philip B. Strong, the Rev. Charles G. Ellis, the Rev. William Ringle, Dr. H. VanHoevenberg, Dr. A. H. Mambert, Dr. J. B. Nelson, E. F. MacFadden, Samuel Bernstein, the Rev. Joseph Rummel, the Rev. John J. Hickey, the latter then at Rosendale, Herbert Carl, Dr. E. D. B. Loughran, Dr. W. J. O'Leary, Dr. Frank Keator, Dr. A. S. Vrooman, Dr. Joseph Bonatz, Dr. C. Keefe, Albert VanTassel, Dr. P. B. Seelye, the Rev. C. M. Taylor, Edward McGill, I. N. Weiner, Dr. John Robinson. Mrs. Clara Norton Reed was named permanent secretary and Charles Burhans, treasurer. The executive committee was Dr. Mary Gage-Day, Mrs. F. J. R. Clark, the Rev. Dr. P. B. Seelye, the Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, William F. Hoehn, Mrs. John N. Cordts, Mrs. Rose Kingsley.

Headquarters for Sale

The Reed home was made the headquarters for the first sale and the aged mother herself did up the first bundle of seals, advertising matter, etc., to be sent out into the county. The committee for this first sale was composed of Mrs. J. C. Norton, Miss Beulah Smith, Miss Grace Masten, Miss Marion Eas, Mrs. E. E. Norwood, Miss Mabel Thompson, Miss Katherine Van Keuren and Mrs. Reed. The first day 2,500 seals, with posters, etc., were sent out. There was general interest in the new movement and in spite of the late beginning the sale netted $480.02.

As a result of this first Christmas Seal sale the committee was able to secure a tuberculosis visiting nurse for the county and the Benedictine Hospital provided Miss Anna O'Shea, to whom Mrs. Reed paid the high tribute, "In the end she gave her life for the work, and gave it gladly."

The next year the Tuberculosis Committee was formed, taking over the work of the Red Cross, except for the printing of the seals, but the little first committee played an important part in the second year's sale, which also was held from Mrs. Reed's home. When finally the first patient, a young girl, was a patient of Dr. O'Leary, whose office at that time was in the Reed home on Crown street. Eventually she made a complete recovery and today has a happy home and family.

In closing Mrs. Reed said, "Nothing I have ever done has given me greater joy than the arranging of the Christmas entertainments for the patients at the first tuberculosis camp and hospital, until the wonderful new hospital was built, a matter of 20 years. The first Christmas tree was given by John Garbarino and either he or his son have contributed Christmas trees for the TB patients' Christmas festivals up to and including the past Christmas."

It was the next year, in May, 1909, that an intensive campaign was put on in Ulster county, with the slogan, "Tuberculosis Is Curable." At the end a mass meeting was held May 24, in the old armory on Broadway and the Ulster County Committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis was formed. The Hon. Joseph M. Fowler was elected president; the Rev. R. L. Burtzell, Isaac Weiner, E. F. MacFadden, M. A. Dedrick and Mary Isabella Forsyth, vice presidents; Dr. Mary Gage-Day, secretary; W. D. Hale, treasurer. Sub-committees were: Dr. E. S. Thorwood, dispensary and visiting nurse; Philip Elting, legislation and municipal regulation; Dr. H. VanHoevenberg, incipient cases, relief and sanatorium treatment; Dr. Mark O'Meara, hospital care, advanced cases; W. F. Hoehn, education and publicity; the Rev. C. M. Hall, summer and day camps; John D. Schoonmaker, finance.

In June, 1909, the committee took action to establish a tuberculosis camp, Major and Mrs. James Everett donating a site on the hill overlooking Clifton avenue, on the Flatbush road.

April 29, 1910, the first tuberculosis hospital was opened, the board of supervisors appropriating $6,000 for the year.

October 19, 1930, the cornerstone of the 50 bed hospital on Golden Hill was laid and the hospital was opened in December, 1931.

Other Speakers

Other speakers at the dinner Tuesday night were George J.

Nelbach, executive secretary of the New York State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health, and Dr. Robert E. Plunkett, general superintendent of tuberculosis hospitals in the state.

Dr. Plunkett, after commending the leadership of Judge Fowler in the work, reviewed briefly what had been done in the fight against tuberculosis during 30 years. He spoke of the work, largely guesswork in early days, with no precision instruments, no X-rays and lack of many other scientific helps available today. He said that today they are coming into a more positive era, while the work has grown to such an extent that expenditures run into the millions of dollars, while the upstate death rate from this disease has been cut from 33.5 to 28.4, with a reduction in the Ulster county rate this year. He declared that prevention is the great thing and spoke of what has been accomplished through the isolation of 100,000 patients.

About 100,000 examinations were made last year, Dr. Plunkett said, adding that surveys show that for every hospital case there are five or six cases in homes, with perhaps a total of 500,000 cases in the United States.

Commenting on the statement that it costs, probably $1,000 to cure and cure early cases of the disease, the ultimate cost of cases which are allowed to run on averages more than five times that amount, the speaker declared.

Urges Continued Efforts

George J. Nelbach, identified with the work of the tuberculosis control, spoke generally on the continuing necessity of citizens' organizations such as the Ulster County Committee and paid his tribute to Judge Fowler. He said that it was 30 years ago that he was sent to Kingston to conduct the campaign of public education that was put on at that time and two of the first persons he contacted was Mrs. Reed and Dr. Mary Gage-Day. A number of those who took part in that organization meeting at the armory, concluding the campaign, were mentioned by the speaker and Mr. Nelbach noted that earlier this evening he had discovered that among the guests present was Dr. John A. Kingsbury, first executive secretary of the state committee, who came to Kingston in 1909 to close up the campaign. Dr. Kingsbury is now living at Shady.

There was a laugh, when the speaker in his introduction said that "nothing of much good happens without sound organization," and then, turning to his left, added, "That isn't news to you, I guess, Mr. Elting."

As to just what the work of that has been done means in lives saved, Mr. Nelbach said that the reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis meant that last year 6,400 more persons would have died upstate had the death rate remained what it was 30 years ago.

The same thing, he said, was true of the fight against another dread scourge in years gone by, diphtheria. It was shown that there were only 21 deaths from this disease last year in upstate New York, a reduction of 96 per cent from the average mortality in the ten year period preceding 1926, when the drive against diphtheria was organized.

Mr. Nelbach said that "The community service of a beloved and respected citizen, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler, being honored by this dinner, is an apt illustration of how the voluntary health agency provides a medium for citizen promotion of public health. For 30 years the Ulster County Tuberculosis Committee has had the benefit of Judge Fowler's leadership in its attack on tuberculosis, diphtheria and syphilis. His wise and effective pioneering is a foundation for further progress."

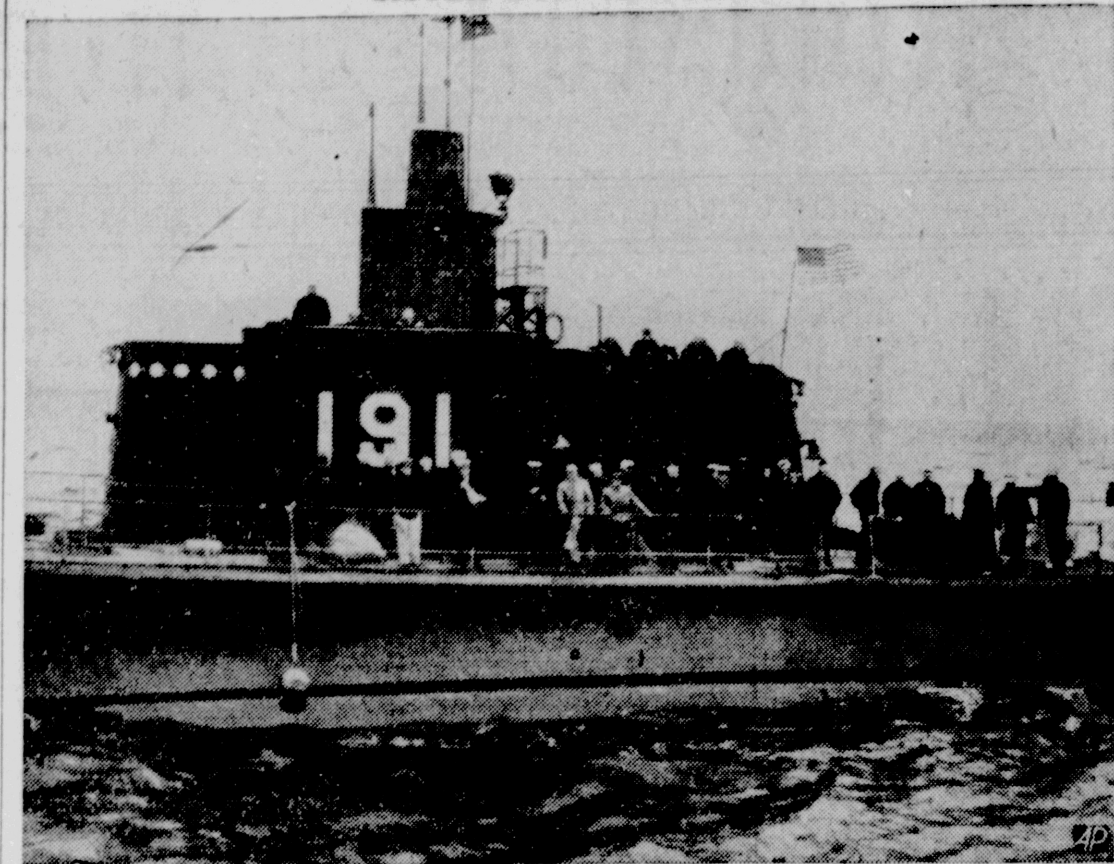

Continuing his subject the speaker said in part: "The citizen health organization always will be needed in every city and county as long as democracy endures in this country. Even though increasing amounts of public money—federal, state and local—are appropriated for official health agencies and even if diseases now being fought are brought under control, the organization will have important responsibilities in community health education and protection."

A function of county committees like yours is to conduct a continuous campaign of information and education to instruct people about the nature, cure, prevention and control of tuberculosis and syphilis. Why? Because the voluntary health agency is in effect the conscience and voice of the people in matters pertaining to public health. Tuberculosis and syphilis sufferers are in the minority and cannot speak effectively for themselves. We must speak for them and for those threatened with disease so that adequate measures for prevention and control will be taken.

The campaign in this country, led by Judge Fowler, for the establishment of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital illustrates one of the most important functions of voluntary health organizations, that of arousing and mobilizing public support for the need of the community for the establishment of facilities for dealing with disease. Without such leadership, it is not likely that Ulster county would have today this fine tuberculosis hospital.

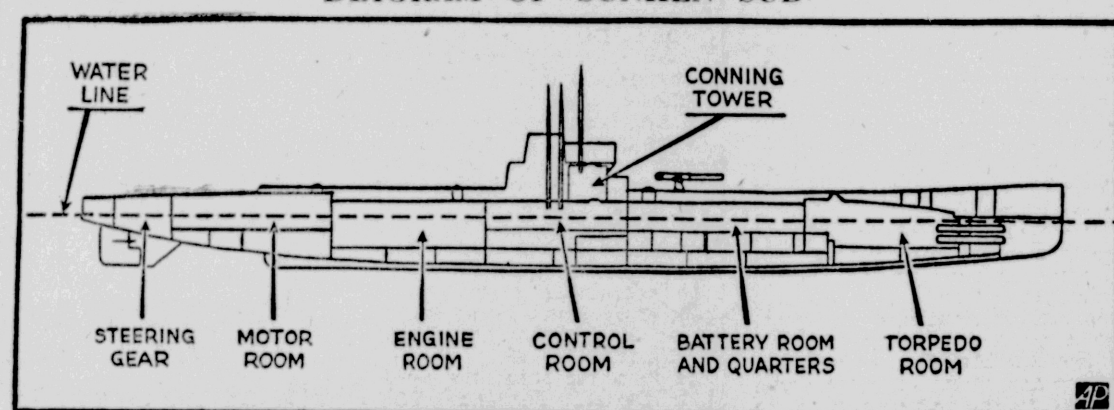

The time now has come for us to look toward the substantial eradication of tuberculosis by devoting more effort than ever before to preventing the spread of infection from sputum positive cases to household associates. This can be done by earlier and longer hospital care of patients and by the discovery of tuberculosis cases long before they develop symptoms through the more universal use of the X-ray fluoroscope, tuberculin test and the sputum test. Efforts to discover tuberculosis earlier should be directed among such susceptible groups as members of families living in close contact with known cases of tuberculosis; youth and young adults such as high school and college students; medical students, nurses and student nurses; young applicants for working papers; workers in factories exposed to dangerous dust; expectant mothers and mothers of babies; members of families receiving home relief; WPA workers and negroes.

Citizen health organizations must ever be alert to help promote the enactment of necessary laws—local, state and national—and to assist in opposing legislation harmful to the cause of public health.

Another leading role of your committee is to demonstrate the need and value of projects for a temporary period only until it is possible for them to be taken over by an official agency and supported by taxation.

Funds from the annual sale of Christmas Seals have been used all through these years to establish clinics, employ nurses and physicians, nutritionists, health teachers and even to provide hospital care for tuberculosis patients. Much of this work is now conducted by official authorities. A particular service, ably demonstrated by your committee, which I should like to see extended in Ulster county, is the employment of additional county public health nurses whose services are needed in the further prevention and control of tuberculosis, pneumonia, syphilis, cancer and diseases affecting maternity and infancy.

Finally, it will ever be a function of the voluntary health agency to help interpret to citizens and taxpayers the work of the public health authorities; to help promote a continuity of standards and objectives on the part of these authorities; to prevent a slump in the work due to ineffective personnel or administrative changes, and also to rally public opinion to the support of efficient health authorities when unjustly attacked from any source.

Preceding the dinner the invocation was given by the Rev. William H. Kennedy of St. Mary's Church and the evening program was concluded with the benediction by the Rev. Maurice W. Verne of St. John's Episcopal Church. Dinner music was given by Jacob Mollett, with Harry Maisenhelder at the piano.

"Really, Arthur, your argument with your wife last night was most amusing."

"Wasn't it? When she threw the ax at me I thought I'd split."

Chapman Beats Yates

Hoylake, Eng., May 24 (AP)—American representation in the British golf championship was reduced to Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., and Bill Holt of Syracuse today when Ellsworth Vines, former tennis champion, left before John Ballie of Australia 2 and 1. Previously, Chapman climbed defending champion Charles Yates of Atlanta, Ga., 5 and 3 and Holt defeated D. S. Coates of England, 3 and 2. The victories sent Chapman and Holt into the fourth round.

Plans Progress For Camp Wendy

Plans are progressing, it was announced today, for the opening of Camp Wendy, the summer activities site of the local Girl Scouts, near Walkkill. A committee has been working in preparation for the season and for the scout rally to be held Saturday.

Miss Parrish, the camp director, will spend the week-end at Wendy and any parent, who would like to talk "about camping" for her daughter, is asked to see her Sunday before 2:30 o'clock. Sunday afternoon, the camp committee will meet at the camp and final plans will be made. The committee will also inspect the new unit, "Romany," for older girls which is being built on the hill above the former pioneer unit.

Most of the camp staff is engaged and all the former campers will be glad to know that "Bushy," the faithful cook, is returning, so excellent food is assured for 1939.

Applications are coming in rapidly and any Scout wanting to be in the first encampment, particularly for the canoe trip, should send her application to Miss Eaton or Miss Hasbrouck as soon as possible.

BRIGHT SPOTS

Underlying business conditions are fundamentally sound, said C. W. Harvey of Boston, speaking the other day before the credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

"Bogues which haunt us all and effectively inhibit any feeling of certainty and confidence in the future are the almost continuous state of crises in European affairs, and the continuous uncertainties and fears of hindrance or impractical regulation of business by our own government."

There are, however, bright spots in the pattern. Increase in employment though still to small, now seems definite. An increase in building contracts shows for the fifth consecutive year. A housing shortage which is an undoubted fact provides a reservoir of future demand not only for building materials and labor, but for furniture, draperies and all the things which go to make up a home. Banks are in the strongest position for years, with plenty of money available for sound enterprise.

And the growth and development of wise credit management, said various speakers at the convention, helps to keep buying on a sound basis, to keep instalment purchasing from getting out of hand. Prospective tax revision with the idea of getting taxes on a more realistic basis ought to help, too. Taxes which keep business fearful, no matter how attractive their theory may be, are of no practical use, give little return.

The factors here enumerated are among the most hopeful signs for keeping life on an even keel for the next few years. No thoughtful business man expects or wants any sudden boom. Opportunity to keep on climbing slowly seems the desirable thing.

HOT ENOUGH

Two serious-minded German gentlemen, we are told, contemplated the Tennessee State exhibit at the New York World's Fair. They learned that there was plenty of kaolin clay in Tennessee, which interested them because they were thinking about starting a pottery. One of them finally asked Miss Jones-in-charge, "Madame, what I need to know—is it just hot in your state, or what you call damn hot?"

Miss Jones had already told them Tennessee had four seasons, but cattle could graze all winter, and was about to proceed when this query all but floored her for a few seconds. Bravely she took it as it was.

"Damn hot, huh? Quite damn hot!"

The serious minded potters thanked her and moved away, still gravely pondering pots and pots in their own tongue. Whether it was hot enough for them in Tennessee, Meyer Berger who tells the tale in the New York Times failed to state. It is to be hoped that they went to see for themselves. The rivers and rainfall, the parks and gardens, the mountains and the cities may well be pointed to with pride by the natives of that region. Works of God and works of Man reach a high level in the state and around the edges of Tennessee.

A LAST SMOKE

It is incredible how important tobacco has become to millions of people. Many would almost literally "die for a cigarette." Indeed, a Pittsburgh man the other day did that very thing.

His name was Eugene A. Boehm, his age 40. The coroner's report says he was at a hospital undergoing treatment in an oxygen tent. The patient had been warned repeatedly of the danger of smoking in the presence of oxygen. Nevertheless he took the chance. The moment he struck a match to light his smuggled cigarette, the inflammable gas ignited and he was burned to death.

With all the chances taken in tossing around burning matches and unquenched cigarette and cigar stubs and live pipe ashes, it's a wonder there are not more tragedies. It might pay the tobacco industry to start a safety campaign.

SEPTUAGENARIAN CYCLIST

There are still some old-time bicycle men in this country, even with all the motorcycles and an automobile to every four persons. One of them is William H. Blair, a Clevelander, who started back in 1881 with a wooden "boneshaker." It was a highboy, driven by pedals on the front wheel.

At the age of 73, after 57 years of pedaling, he is still faithful to the sport and proud of his latest wheel. He bought it last July and has already ridden more than 8,000 miles on it. He uses his bike to ride to work and often covers 100 miles or more on Sunday just for fun. He is a musician, too, and has been known to play his cornet while riding. He has cycled many hundred thousand miles.

Now it is in order to hear from other old-timers. Who can beat Mr. Blair's record?

PATRIOTIC TRAVEL

The Great Smoky Mountains National Park has been open to the public for several years, and many thousands of visitors have already rejoiced in the scenic beauty and recreational opportunities of the region. Official dedication waited for final acquisition of all the land authorized for the park area, now completed.

In a few more weeks, therefore, these ceremonies will take place and this fascinating region will be formally added to the growing list of national parks. The Great Smokies are within easy reach of the most populous centers of the country, which explains the heavy patronage they have already received. But all the national parks, forests and monuments become increasingly popular.

The American people may be said to have discovered for themselves the recreational riches of their own land, and they are beginning to enjoy them to the full. Easterners have long gone west to see the marvels of that section of the country, the Rocky Mountains, the glaciers, the giant redwoods, and all the rest. Westerners should now go east to see the glories offered there—different from those they know best, but equally lovely, satisfying and inspiring.

Patriotic pilgrimages of this sort would do us all a lot of good, particularly if we got acquainted with each other in the process.

A word-monger wants a term like "visualize," to express what you do when you imagine a sound. Oh, you just "auditionize" it.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CANCER IS CURABLE

Drs. Banting and Best, the Toronto research physicians, have given insulin to the world and thus saved or prolonged the lives of diabetic children and adults. Diabetes was formerly an incurable disease. Similarly, Drs. Minot and Murphy, Boston, showed that liver and, later, liver extract, would prevent death in the formerly incurable pernicious anemia.

With these two wonderful achievements within the past ten to fifteen years, it was confidently expected by justly and justly practicing physicians that the cause of cancer would soon be discovered and another fatal disease conquered. Despite the great expenditure of time and money throughout the civilized world, the cause of cancer remains unknown.

Now, there is really no known cure for diabetes or pernicious anemia, yet these diseases are being conquered—by prolonging lives for several years—by the use of insulin and liver respectively. We should therefore, in justice to cancer research workers, appreciate the fact that, if discovered early, cancer can be actually cured, by the use of the X-ray, and radium.

Instead of waiting for a sore or a lump to develop to the point where there is no doubt of it being a cancer, what is called a biopsy is now made. This is the examination of a piece of the suspected tissue under the microscope.

The Canadian Medical Association in its Handbook on Cancer, says, "Biopsy is a most useful procedure and the only means of making certain that the growth is cancer."

It certainly illustrates the great 'team' work in hospitals now to see the pathologist take a small piece of tissue from the operating room at once to the laboratory for microscopic examination.

The outlook for cancer of the lip is extraordinarily good. Over 75 per cent of all cases, without selection, may be cured. The importance of recognizing cancer early and giving immediate treatment is shown by the fact that less than 2 per cent of the cases treated early die of the disease, whereas 60 per cent of neglected patients die of cancer.

Of course, the lip is easily get-at-able, but in early cases of cancer of the tongue and the inside of the cheek, the result of treatment by surgery and radium gives 60 per cent of cures.

The outlook for cancer of the stomach is not so late to give help. Stomach cancer often gives no warning. When cancer of the stomach is discovered early, it is considered "the easiest form of cancer to cure."

President's Latest Address Illustrates That Business and Government Never Talk About the Same Thing

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, May 24—President Roosevelt's address to the Retail Federation illustrates more pointedly than any official pronouncement in recent months just why business and government do not get together. Briefly, it is because they never seem to be talking about the same thing.

The President argues, first, that the cries for a balanced budget are never accompanied by any formula as to how expenses are to be cut. He not only is right about that, but it is an incontrovertible fact that neither the Republican nor Democratic leadership in either house of Congress has ever put before the public a program for a balanced budget. So, when the President says business men hesitate to offer a concrete program of budget balancing, it is for the very good reason that pressure groups deriving big subsidies from the government have been encouraged sufficiently to expect federal funds, and the Congress, fearing political reprisals, will not do any material cutting.

Mr. Roosevelt can ask his business men visitors whether they would cut this or that item, and usually, because the items have been political, the tendency is not to incur political antagonisms by insisting that this or that group be deprived of its particular subsidy. Even business gets subsidies in various forms, and this makes the whole question of mutual sacrifice or concession something rather theoretical hereabouts.

As to taxes, the President says he wants to see certain revenues made up if certain taxes are reduced, and he refers to the unbalanced budget as the reason, but the logic of the situation in reply is that, if incentives to business will increase the total volume of transactions and hence the tax receipts, then reducing tax rates is exactly in line with what the President talks about when he urges federal investment or expenditure as a means of raising the total national income.

The President's discussion of the problem of tax revision is vulnerable from the standpoint of those who feel that indirect taxes are being imposed in consumer prices. Other words, enough evidence has been adduced by experts in taxation to prove that the presence of certain types of taxes on business results in a burden on the poor people, who have to buy articles which are higher in price than they would be if the tax levies were lessened. Mr. Roosevelt made no mention of the many forms of taxation that prevent business from increasing the national income, and especially of the deterrents which relate to business reorganizations and the process of re-creating capital. But the President was denouncing his administration against such attacks as "National Debt Week" and he was not offering a legislative program.

The principal point which the President reiterated, namely, that he would not take a chance on reducing federal spending on the mere "hunch" that business would get better, is one on which most members of Congress concur. They believe that until substitutes for public spending are in sight there will be little chance politically for members to be reelected during a deflationary period of budget cutting.

When Mr. Roosevelt says that there is no need to worry about future generations paying the interest on the national debt because they will be paying it to themselves, he gives some sanction to a doctrine made famous by repudiation advocates and inflationists for centuries. There is a considerable school of thought in America which says, "Why pay any interest at all on government debt?" In Germany, internal debt was repudiated on the theory that it was owed by the government to the people and by the people to the government.

What is overlooked is that the whole debt structure of the nation, private and public, is interwoven, and that, if interest on government debt is going to be permitted to grow on the theory that a government can always collect enough to pay it, there will be little regard given to the sanctity of debt contracts involving the government, because, in the end, confiscation will be necessary in order to get enough taxes to pay debt.

By the time future generations are up against the problem of paying the debt incurred today, it may not be a question of paying the interest, but of repudiating it, as well as the principal, the ground that the burden is too great to be borne. Outright repudiation, however, does not need to happen. Political governments have in past centuries found it easier to devalue the monetary unit and then the purchasing power of their currency. Thus, if it be expected that the national budget cannot be cut, and maybe business men would be strategically in a better position in the debate if they conceded it, the question then arises whether it can ever be balanced with the present price level.

If dollars become worth 60 cents in purchasing power through the increase in the cost of living, due either to lack of confidence in the dollar or the tremendous increase in taxation, then it may not matter some day if we have an $8,000,000,000 annual budget, because this would be the equivalent of about a $5,000,000,000 budget of other years when the price level was lower and the dollar could buy more. In other words, business can well ask, "All right, the budget cannot be cut. How then can business earn enough to pay $8,000,000,000 in taxes? What can the government do to help its partner—private business—especially when tax receipts have never gone beyond $6,500,000,000 a year at any time in our history?" The two sides together to talk about the same things instead of different premises.

BRIGHT SPOTS

Underlying business conditions are fundamentally sound, said C. W. Harvey of Boston, speaking the other day before the credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

"Bogeys which haunt us all and effectively inhibit any feeling of certainty and confidence in the future are the almost continuous state of crises in European affairs, and the continuous uncertainties and fears of hindrance or impractical regulation of business by our own government."

There are, however, bright spots in the pattern. Increase in employment though still to small, now seems definite. An increase in building contracts shows for the fifth consecutive year. A housing shortage which is an undoubted fact provides a reservoir of future demand not only for building materials and labor, but for furniture, draperies and all the things which go to make up a home. Banks are in the strongest position for years, with plenty of money available for sound enterprise.

And the growth and development of wise credit management, said various speakers at the convention, helps to keep buying on a sound basis, to keep instalment purchasing from getting out of hand. Prospective tax revision with the idea of getting taxes on a more realistic basis ought to help, too. Taxes which keep business fearful, no matter how attractive their theory may be, are of no practical use, give little return.

The factors here enumerated are among the most hopeful signs for keeping life on an even keel for the next few years. No thoughtful business man expects or wants any sudden boom. Opportunity to keep on climbing slowly seems the desirable thing.

HOT ENOUGH

Two serious-minded German gentlemen, we are told, contemplated the Tennessee State exhibit at the New York World's Fair. They learned that there was plenty of kaolin clay in Tennessee, which interested them because they were thinking about starting a pottery. One of them finally asked Miss Jones-in-charge, "Madame, what I need to know—is it just hot in your state, or what you call damn hot?"

Miss Jones had already told them Tennessee had four seasons, but cattle could graze all winter, and was about to proceed when this query all but floored her for a few seconds. Bravely she took it as it was.

"Damn hot, huh! Quite damn hot!"
The serious minded potters thanked her and moved away, still gravely pondering pots and hots in their own tongue. Whether it was hot enough for them in Tennessee, Meyer Berger who tells the tale in the New York Times failed to state. It is to be hoped that they went to see for themselves. The rivers and rainfall, the parks and gardens, the mountains and the cities may well be pointed to with pride by the natives of that region. Works of God and works of Man reach a high level in the state and around the edges of Tennessee.

A LAST SMOKE

It is incredible how important tobacco has become to millions of people. Many would almost literally "die for a cigarette." Indeed, a Pittsburgh man the other day did that very thing.

His name was Eugene A. Boehm, his age 40. The coroner's report says he was at a hospital undergoing treatment in an oxygen tent. The patient had been warned repeatedly of the danger of smoking in the presence of oxygen. Nevertheless he took the chance. The moment he struck a match to light his smuggled cigarette, the inflammable gas ignited and he was burned to death.

With all the chances taken in tossing around burning matches and unquenched cigarette and cigar stubs and live pipe ashes, it's a wonder there are not more tragedies. It might pay the tobacco industry to start a safety campaign.

SEPTUAGENARIAN CYCLIST

There are still some old-time bicycle men in this country, even with all the motorcycles and an automobile to every four persons. One of them is William H. Blair, a Clevelander, who started back in 1881 with a wooden "boneshaker." It was a highboy, driven by pedals on the front wheel.

At the age of 73, after 57 years of pedaling, he is still faithful to the sport and proud of his latest wheel. He bought it last July and has already ridden more than 8,000 miles on it. He uses his bike to ride to work and often covers 100 miles or more on Sunday just for fun. He is a musician, too, and has been known to play his cornet while riding. He has cycled many hundred thousand miles.

Now it is in order to hear from other old-timers. Who can beat Mr. Blair's record?

PATRIOTIC TRAVEL

The Great Smoky Mountains National Park has been open to the public for several years, and many thousands of visitors have already rejoiced in the scenic beauty and recreational opportunities of the region. Official dedication waited for final acquisition of all the land authorized for the park area, now completed.

In a few more weeks, therefore, these ceremonies will take place and this fascinating region will be formally added to the growing list of national parks. The Great Smokies are within easy reach of the most populous centers of the country, which explains the heavy patronage they have already received. But all the national parks, forests and monuments become increasingly popular.

The American people may be said to have discovered for themselves the recreational riches of their own land, and they are beginning to enjoy them to the full. Easterners have long gone west to see the marvels of that section of the country, the Rocky Mountains, the glaciers, the giant redwoods, and all the rest. Westerners should now go east to see the glories offered there—different from those they know best, but equally lovely, satisfying and inspiring.

Patriotic pilgrimages of this sort would do us all a lot of good, particularly if we got acquainted with each other in the process.

A word-monger wants a term like "visualize", to express what you do when you imagine a sound. Oh, you just "auditionize" it.

CANCER IS CURABLE

Drs. Banting and Best, the Toronto research physicians, have given insulin to the world and thus saved or prolonged the lives of diabetic children and adults. Diabetes was formerly an incurable disease. Similarly, Drs. Minot and Murphy, Boston, showed that liver and, later, liver extract, would prevent death in the formerly incurable pernicious anemia.

With these two wonderful achievements within the past ten to fifteen years, it was confidently expected by research and practicing physicians that the cause of cancer would soon be discovered and another fatal disease conquered. Despite the great expenditure of time and money throughout the civilized world, the cause of cancer remains unknown.

Now, there is really no known cure for diabetes or pernicious anemia, yet these diseases are being conquered—by prolonging lives for several years—by the use of insulin and liver respectively. We should therefore, in justice to cancer research workers, appreciate the fact that, if discovered early, cancer can be actually cured, by the use of the knife, X-rays, and radium.

Instead of waiting for a sore or a lump to develop to the point where there is no doubt of it being a cancer, what is called a biopsy is now made. This is the examination of a piece of the suspected tissue under the microscope.

The Canadian Medical Association in its Handbook on Cancer, say, "Biopsy is a most useful procedure and the only means of making certain that the growth is cancer."

It certainly illustrates the great "team" work in hospitals now to see the pathologist take a small piece of tissue from the operating room at once to the laboratory for microscopic examination.

The outlook for cancer of the lip is extraordinarily good. Over 75 per cent of all cases, without selection, may be cured. The importance of recognizing cancer early and giving immediate treatment is shown by the fact that less than 2 per cent of the cases treated early die of the disease, whereas 60 per cent of neglected patients die of cancer.

Of course, the lip is easily get-at-able, but in early cases of cancer of the tongue and the inside of the cheek, the result of treatment by surgery and radium gives 60 per cent of cures.

Unfortunately, about half the cases of cancer of the stomach are not discovered until it is too late to give help. Stomach cancer often gives no warning. When cancer of the stomach is discovered early, it is considered "the easiest form of cancer to cure."

School Art Exhibit

Ellenville, May 23—The annual school art exhibit will be held on Friday and Saturday in the large and small auditoriums at the high school. Exhibits will include "Our Changing World," which portrays the development in homes, food, clothing, transportation, health, etc., and a display celebrating Mother's Day. Parents and friends are cordially invited to see the work of the art classes this year.

The President's discussion of the problem of tax revision is vulnerable from the standpoint of those who feel that indirect taxes are being imbedded in consumer prices. In other words, enough evidence has been added by experts in taxation to prove that the presence of certain types of taxes on business results in a burden on the poor people, who have to buy articles which are higher in price than they would be if the tax levies were lessened.

Mr. Roosevelt made no mention of the many forms of taxation that prevent business from increasing the national income, and especially of the deterrents which relate to business reorganizations and the process of re-creating capital. But the President was defending his administration against such attacks as "National Debt Week" and he was not offering a legislative program.

The principal point which the President reiterated, namely, that he would not take a chance on reducing federal spending on the mere "hunch" that business would get better, is one on which most members of Congress concur. They believe that until substitutes for public spending are in sight there will be little chance politically for members to be reelected during a deflationary period of budget cutting.

When Mr. Roosevelt says that there is no need to worry about future generations paying the interest on the national debt because they will be paying it to themselves, he gives some sanction to a doctrine made famous by repudiation advocates and inflationists for centuries. There is a considerable school of thought in America which says, "why pay any interest at all on government debt?" In Germany, internal debt was repudiated on the theory that it was owed by the government to the people and by the people to the government.

What is overlooked is that the whole debt structure of the nation, private and public, is interwoven, and that, if interest on government debt is going to be permitted to grow on the theory that a government can always collect enough to pay it, there will be little regard given to the sanctity of debt contracts involving the government, because, in the end, confiscation will be necessary in order to get enough taxes to pay debt.

By the time future generations are up against the problem of paying the debt incurred today, it may not be a case of paying the interest, but of repudiating it, as well as the principal, on the ground that the burden is too great to be borne. Outright repudiation, however, does not need to happen. Political governments have in past centuries found it easier to devalue the monetary unit and then the purchasing power of their currency. Thus, if it is expected that the national budget cannot be cut, and maybe business men would be strategically in a better position in the debate if they conceded it, the question then arises whether it can ever be balanced with the present price level.

If dollars become worth 60 cents in purchasing power through the increase in the cost of living, due either to lack of confidence in the dollar or the tremendous increase in taxation, then it may not matter some day if we have an $8,000,000,000 annual budget, because this would be the equivalent of about a $5,000,000,000 budget of other years when the price level was lower and the dollar could buy more. In other words, business can well ask, "All right, the budget cannot be cut. How then can business earn enough to pay $8,000,000,000 in taxes?" What can the government do to help its partner—private business—especially when tax receipts have never gone beyond $5,000,000,000 a year at any time in our history?"

Such a question would bring the two sides together to talk about the same things instead of different premises.

President's Latest Address Illustrates That Business and Government Never Talk About the Same Thing

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, May 24—President Roosevelt's address to the Retail Federation illustrates more pointedly than any official pronouncement in recent months just why business and government do not get together. Briefly, it is because they never seem to be talking about the same thing.

The President argues, first, that the cries for a balanced budget are never accompanied by any formula as to how expenses are to be cut. He not only is right about that, but it is an incontrovertible fact that neither the Republican nor Democratic leadership in either house of Congress has ever put before the public a program for a balanced budget. So, when the President says business men hesitate to offer a concrete program of budget balancing, it is for the very good reason that pressure groups deriving big subsidies from the government have been encouraged sufficiently to expect federal funds, and the Congress, fearing political reprisals, will not do any material cutting.

Mr. Roosevelt can ask his business men visitors whether they would cut this or that item, and usually, because the items have been political, the tendency is not to incur political antagonisms by insisting that this or that group be deprived of its particular subsidy. Even business gets subsidies in various forms, and this makes the whole question of mutual sacrifice or concession something rather theoretical heretofore.

As to taxes, the President says he wants to see certain revenues made up if certain taxes are reduced, and he refers to the unbalanced budget as the reason, but the logic of the situation in reply is that, if incentives to business will increase the total volume of transactions and hence the tax receipts, then reducing tax rates is exactly in line with what the President talks about when he urges federal investment or expenditure as a means of raising the total national income.

The President's discussion of the problem of tax revision is vulnerable from the standpoint of those who feel that indirect taxes are being imbedded in consumer prices. In other words, enough evidence has been added by experts in taxation to prove that the presence of certain types of taxes on business results in a burden on the poor people, who have to buy articles which are higher in price than they would be if the tax levies were lessened.

Domestic Workers Are Hard to Get

Despite the general scarcity of jobs, there is at least one occupation in which the supply of workers has not caught up with the demand.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the border to the gulf, competent domestics who are willing to "live in" are at a premium. The shortage of permanent domestic help, noticeable here in Kingston, is characteristic of a nation-wide situation, according to Kenneth A. Simpson, manager of the local office of the New York State Employment Service.

"This shortage is not exactly news," Mr. Simpson said, "because it is perennial. Rarely do we have enough applicants to meet the demand for permanent domestic employees. This situation, of course, makes the opportunities for employment numerous for women, who are not prejudiced against permanent full-time employment."

On file at the local office of the Employment Service are the applications for employment of many women, and men too, who wish domestic work by the day or by the hour. Few, however, seek permanent positions, he said.

"Principally responsible for this situation," he explained, "is the reluctance of workers to bind themselves to the indefinite working hours that usually are the lot of the full-time domestic employee. Low pay, the lack of leisure to devote to recreation and personal interests, and lack of companionship are other factors. The average domestic worker prefers to go out by the day, work a definite number of hours, draw pay by the hour, and quit on schedule."

Domestic workers who wish full-time permanent employment were urged to place their applications for employment with the Kingston office of the Service, which assists employers and employees alike, without charge.

A Name For Everything
Butte, Mont., (AP)—There was a doctor in the crowd that stood in the warm spring sunshine gazing upward at men at work removing a cornice from a high building.

"Say doc," said a gazer, "what's the scientific name for what we would be exposing ourselves to if the sun was stronger?" "Amygdala, hehehehe," promptly replied the doctor. Which means sunburned tonsils.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
Joey Russell, beautiful heiress.
Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaford.

Yesterday, Thorn disinherited Bob because of his protest. Bob and Gretchen go to live with the Macks.

Chapter 21

Problems Of Parenthood

AT THE end of the week Tally informed the family over mid-day dinner that Bob was a born farmer.

Bob's face glowed with pleasure. "I'm really happy for the first time in my life," he told them with simple sincerity. "I guess I'm a sort of throwback or something like that. I like digging in the ground and watching things grow. I like milking cows and feeding chickens. I like going to bed early and getting up early. I like plain, solid food with no trimmings... and I love my new family. I feel now as if I never wanted to live differently. I'm content if Gretchen is. Are you, Gretchen?"

"I'm happy if you are," she said. "But wouldn't you like to travel? Have fun and see the world? I'm not doing anything for you. I didn't even take you on a honeymoon."

A shadow darkened her face. "I've traveled enough. This is what I want. Bob. Those other things—well, I've never had them and you can't miss what you've never had."

"If you did want them I'd get them for you, Gretchen."

"Her fingers caressed his cheek. "I know you would, darling, but trying to do what you would make you so miserable that there would be no happiness for either of us. No, Bob, this is best."

Gramp, endeavoring to eat corn-cakes with his "store teeth," looked up long enough to say, "For a woman, Gretchen, you got a lot of sense!"

Betsy wriggled out of her high chair and scrambled up on Bob's lap. "Mister Bob—I mean, Daddy—member once you promised me ice-cream if I didn't do something naughty?"

He poked a finger through one of her long black curls, his smile indulgent. "What is the naughty thing you want to do, Betsy?"

Her eyes snapped with impish promptings. "I won't tell."

"Blackmail, eh?"

"Huh-uh. Ice-cream. Strawberry ice-cream, I think."

Tally started to say something, reconsidered, closed his mouth. Bob had taken Betsy over as his job now. If he wasn't any more of what a little mind she was, he soon would learn. Tally relaxed and lit a cigarette.

Bob adjudged from the silence that he was being wordlessly handed the reins for this alert small colt he had acquired. Very solemnly he tilted her rosy face and said: "You mustn't do naughty things, Betsy, whether you get ice-cream or not."

"Because—well—" he floundered, his eyes beseeching Tally's. "Because if you're a bad girl you'll be punished," her uncle stated.

"What's punished mean?" she demanded. "Spanked?"

"Exactly."

Hot Water
SHE SNUGGLED closer to Bob and poked up her tongue at Tally. "You can't boss me any more at all," she declared. "I've got a new daddy and he won't let you spank me. Will you, Daddy?"

Bob writhed with embarrassment. "The water is getting too hot for me, Tally."

"What water? I don't see any water," Bob complained. "Tally can't spank me, can he? Can he?"

Gretchen, who had been in the breach, "Of course he can, Betsy. You have to mind everybody in our family and Bob is not going to spank you."

The child's lower lip protruded. "He promised me ice-cream to be good!" she wailed.

"And you may have all the ice-cream you want if you're a good girl all the time," Bob promised rashly.

"Then I want some now, Daddy."

"Not now, Betsy. Your Uncle Tally and I have a lot of work to do and I can't take you into town today."

"Then I'll be naughty," she declared, smugly.

"Then you will be punished," Bob said firmly. "Now give me a kiss and let's forget the whole thing."

place to make her mind... he wants her to love him, and it's not easy to be a step-father."

"I know it," her mother sympathized. "Well, don't you worry about it. Tally can take care of her. Sometimes I wonder just what would become of us all if it wasn't for him?"

Gretchen said unhappily. "Mama, he's giving us his life. He always has. He ought to have a wife and a family of his own. He's almost twenty-six years old."

"Who you talkin' about?" Gramp demanded, coming down the back stairway.

"Well, you never mind about him. I got a notion he's pretty soft on that red-headed Russell gal. She won't have none of him but he gets a mighty peculiar look in his eyes every time her name is spoke! And if he wants her he'll get her. He's a chip off the old block, he is, and you mind what I'm sayin'."

"Oh, Gramp, you're getting childish!" Gretchen laughed. "Joeylin is going to marry that rich polo player. She wears a diamond engagement ring as big as a radish."

"Calling me a—ool, are ye?" she snorted, his wrinkled jowls twitching with indignation. "I'll just tell you something else, then! She's crazy 'bout Tally, too, even if she don't let on. I've seen plenty of people in love before when they swore to hatin' the sight of each other..."

"You think whatever you want to, Papa," Mrs. Mack calmed him; "but don't you dare say a word to Tally. He's too good for any silly girl with a lot of spooty notions and too much money."

"How about Nola?" Gramp asked slyly. She got millions."

"Nola don't love Tally and you know it. Nola's a nice girl and not a bit spoiled. She likes us all. Now, Papa, please talk a walk or a nap or something."

"Sure," he mumbled. "Ain't I just a child? I don't know nuthin'. Gramp is just a silly old man. Well, you just wait and see. With that he bit off a great chunk of plug tobacco and ambled out into the sunshine, shaking his curly white head in disdain.

Bracelet And Doll
BETSY, supposedly taking a nap in her upstairs bedroom, remained quiet until she heard her mother leave the house. Then, on small bare feet, she wandered along the hallway until she reached the door, bolted now for several months, which communicated with the parallel hallway on the right side of the house.

With practiced dexterity she shot back the bolt and stealthily opened the door. A beatific smile lighted her face. A number of times when not at home she had gone into the other side of the house. Always it the same place. Always to look at the same things. She really wanted to be a good girl so she would not be punished, but it was mean to tell her she could have ice-cream for being good and then not give it to her when she wanted it.

Cautiously, she opened the door of Joeylin's room, ran to the window which looked out on the side terrace and the garage; observed that all the cars were gone. She went over to the bed and picked up the beautiful French doll, hugged it in her arms, and kissed its pretty painted face. While smoothing its taffeta skirts and patting its real auburn hair she talked to it, calling it Molly.

She had never, it told her, after a little girl who had once visited her in Texas. The little girl had been red-haired and pretty. The fact that they had fought constantly over everything made no difference.

Carrying the doll under her arm, Betsy went over to Joeylin's dressing table and inspected the array of perfume bottles and colored jars. A circle of glass containing pictures painted on it attracted her glance. She lifted the lid and the jar played a tinkling tune. Started at first, enraptured, she experimented and discovered she could keep it playing by putting the cover on and off.

Tiring of this, she spied next a jewel box and opened it. A tray full of costume jewelry, glittering with rhinestones, fascinated her. One by one she tried on the rings and bracelets and earrings, finally abandoning the earrings because she could not fasten them on her tiny ear-lobes. However, she found a headband made of shiny white stones, so she pulled off her hair ribbon and tried it on.

She wondered if Joeylin would miss the wide gold bracelet with the big green stones in it. There were so many here.

The sudden sound of a car below impelled her to run to the window. Oh... it was Joeylin!

Betsy swiftly determined a course of action. Mister Bob—Daddy—had promised her a doll like this one and then forgotten all about it. She would just take these things with her to show him what she wanted him to get her.

The colored preacher had been discoursing about salvation, and concluded by saying that it was free as water. Then came the collection.

"But, parson," objected one of the congregation, "I thought you said salvation was free, like water."

"So it is, brother," said the preacher, "and so is water. We only charge for piping them to you."

In the days when grown children believed in their duty to care for helpless parents, we didn't have all this bother about government pensions for the aged.

Colonel: Hey, you, mark time! Cadet: With my feet, sir? Colonel: Have you ever seen anything mark time with its hands? Cadet: A clock, sir.

From grocer's bills, doctor's pills, sudden chills and other ills, deliver us.

From want of gold, wives that scold, maidens old and widows bold, deliver us.

From seely coats, protested notes, illegal votes and sinking boats, deliver us.

From modest girls, with waving curls and teeth like pearls, well, never mind.

"But my good man," said Mrs. Smith, dubiously, to the tramp at her door, "your story has such a hollow ring."

"Yes, ma'am. That's the natural result of speaking with an empty stomach."

History's Warning
They coveted neighbor's earnings, and robbed for the joy of gain; They killed for the lust of killing, and gloated over pain. They glorified in orphan's weeping, and fattened on widows' fears. They tortured to see men suffer, answering groans with jeers. They damned with a faint derision, and banished whom they would. They mocked at the Lord of Heaven, and scoffed at brotherhood. Ah, such were the ancient pagans with sword and a brand of fire; But God still lives, you can read their end, at Ninevah and Tyre.

Boss: Green, you're discharged. Green: Discharged! What for? I've done nothing, positively nothing.

Boss: That's just it. We'd like to have something done around here.

A Suggestion
I've noticed when a fellow dies, no matter what he's been. A saintly chap, or one whose life was darkly stained with sin. His friends forget the bitter words they spoke but yesterday. And now they find a multitude of pretty things to say. I fancy when I go to rest some one will bring to light. Some kindly word, or goodly act, long buried out of sight. But if it's all the same to you, just give me instead.

The bouquets while I'm living, and the "knocking" when I'm dead. Don't save your kisses to imprint upon my marble brow. While countless maledictions are hurled upon me now; Say just one kindly word to me while I mourn here alone. And don't save all your eulogy to carve upon a stone.

"But, parson," objected one of the congregation, "I thought you said salvation was free, like water."

"So it is, brother," said the preacher, "and so is water. We only charge for piping them to you."

In the days when grown children believed it their duty to care for helpless parents, we didn't have all this bother about government pensions for the aged.

Colonel—Hey, you, mark time! Cadet—With my feet, sir?

Colonel—Have you ever seen anything mark time with its hands?

Cadet—A clock, sir.

Litany
From grocer's bills, doctor's pills, sudden chills and other ills, deliver us.

From want of gold, wives that cold, maidens old and widows bold, deliver us.

From seedy coats, protested notes, illegal votes and sinking boats, deliver us.

From modest girls, with waving curls and teeth like pearls, well, never mind.

"But my good man," said Mrs. Smith, dubiously, to the tramp at her door, "your story has such a hollow ring."

"Yes, ma'am. That's the natural result of speaking with an empty stomach."

History's Warning
They coveted neighbor's earnings, and robbed for the joy of gain; They killed for the lust of killing, and gloated in orphan's weeping and fattened on widows' fears.

They tortured to see men suffer, answering groans with jeers. They damned with a faint derision, and banished whom they would.

They mocked at the Lord of Heaven, and scoffed at brotherhood.

Ah, such were the ancient pagans with sword and a brand of fire; But God still lives, you can read their end, at Ninevah and Tyre.

Boss—Green, you're discharged. Green—Discharged? What for? I've done nothing, positively nothing.

Boss—That's just it. We'd like to have something done around here.

A Suggestion
I've noticed when a fellow dies, no matter what he's been, A saintly chap, or one whose life was darkly stained with sin, His friends forget the bitter words he spoke but yesterday, And now they find a multitude of pretty things to say.

I fancy when I go to rest some one will bring to light Some kindly word, or goodly act, long buried out of sight; But if it's all the same to you, just give me instead The bouquets while I'm living, and the "knocking" when I'm dead.

Don't save your kisses to imprint upon my marble brow. While countless maledictions are hurled upon me now; Say just one kindly word to me while I mourn here alone, And don't save all your eulogy to carve upon a stone.

More Howlers
(Christian Science Monitor)
There are two parts of a sentence, the subject and the predicament. Geometry teaches us how to bisect angles.

A circle is a round straight line with a hole in the middle. Gravitation is such that if there were none of it we should fly away.

Salt is what makes potatoes taste not so good if you don't put any on them.

Times have changed and one has to be up-to-date: Cad—What's become of the old-fashioned girl who used to say "Ask father?"

Ilac—She now has a daughter who says, "Give it more gas, George, the old man is gaining on us."

Judge Groot—So you tried to drive by the officer after he blew his whistle?

Petzing—Your honor, I'm deaf. Judge Groot—That may be true, but you'll get your hearing in the morning.

Teacher—How old would a person be who was born in 1890? Smart Kid—Man or woman?

Wrightsville, Pa.—Digging fishing worms with an older brother, three-year-old Leon Stoner came upon one he thought was the champion of them all.

He pounced upon it with both hands, carried it to his brother and exclaimed:

"Here's a big one."

The startled brother took one look, knocked the "big one" to the ground, and stomped it to death. It was a two-foot snake.

Stamps In The News

By James B. Hatcher

With the Polish-German relations coming to a slow boil over Danzig, the free city's postal officials are doing their bit to identify Danzig on the side of the Reich. They've just released stamps honoring three distinctly German scientists, all deceased.

Before the World War, Danzig was a part of Germany—and the three scientists were of German is paying more attention to the connection between Danzig and the celebrated researchers, because none ever lived for any period of time in Danzig.

The 10-gulden brown stamp shows the famed biologist, Gregor Mendel. It is inscribed, "For healthy children and a joyous future." Mendel was an Austrian abbot famed for his study of heredity.

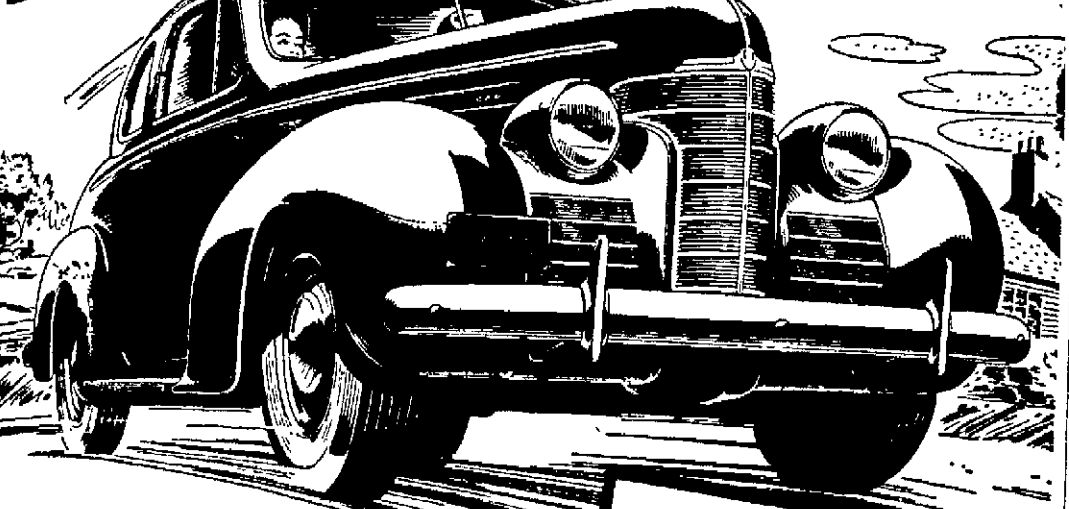

Robert Koch, who is termed one of the greatest bacteriologists of all time, is pictured on the dark gray, 15-gulden stamp. Inscription is, "Air and sunshine, for tuberculosis." Koch died in 1910. Probably his greatest contribution was in isolating the bacillus of tuberculosis.

The discoverer of X-rays, Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen, appears on the olive 25-gulden stamp. Its inscription is, "War against cancer. Cancer is curable." Prussian-born Herr Roentgen died 16 years ago after having worked in Holland, Switzerland and France.

Ukraine's Greatest Poet
The Soviet Union has just issued a set of three stamps commemorating the 125th anniversary of the birth of the Ukraine's most noted poet—Taras Shevchenko.

Issuance of these stamps now is interesting because no stamp was issued in 1914 on the 100th anniversary. That may be because the Czarist government of 1914 was not so appreciative of a proletarian revolutionary as the present government. Another explanation is that the Soviet government mother remained at her residence, Marlborough House, for more than an hour before issuing the bulletin. No other bulletin was expected today.

In addition to Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, who signed last night's bulletin saying the queen had suffered bruises and shock, the physicians in attendance were increased by the visit of Sir John Weir, the first homeopathist to be appointed to the royal family.

In 1929 Weir treated the then Prince of Wales but there was no indication that today's visit was suggested in telephone calls the Duke of Windsor made from France during the night, inquiring as to his mother's condition.

All Queen Mary's children now in London called at Marlborough House—the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent, with their wives, and the Princess Royal, Countess of Harewood, and her husband.

All Go to Derby
The six left soon after noon for Epsom Downs to see the derby. Queen Mary was to have gone along but all routine engagements for the next few days had been cancelled.

It appeared likely that the Queen Mother's birthday party, planned for Friday, would be cancelled along with other engagements.

Callers at Marlborough House last night were amazed to find the Queen walking about a few hours after she had been helped out of her wrecked sedan in suburban Putney.

The front of a two-ton truck loaded with steel bars for air raid precautions signs caught a rear wheel of the Queen's high-topped sedan.

Lady Constance Milnes-Gaskell, lady-in waiting, suffered a grazed arm but Lord Claud Hamilton, comptroller in the Queen's household, escaped injury when they and the Queen were tumbled together amid seat cushions, flowers and broken glass. The chauffeur, Oscar Humphrey, and a footman were shaken but uninjured.

The footman was credited with preventing a fire after the accident by switching off the motor. No one on the truck was injured. The truck driver was not arrested. At his request, his name was not made public by police.

Sons of Legion To Hold Meeting

Thursday evening the Sons of the Legion will hold their regular monthly meeting in the Legion Building on West O'Reilly street.

Captain Bob Messinger is anxious to have every member of the organization present at the meeting.

In addition to the regular business plans for a recreation program will be discussed and adopted.

Chairman Walter Dutcher of the Legion committee announces that the organization has a tract of land at Glenier Park, bordering on the Esopus creek, and it is proposed to establish a summer camp for the boys there.

At the meeting Thursday a schedule will be adopted and a definite plan prepared for those who will attend the camp.

Property Owners To Hear of Plan

Property owners along the brook on Wilbur avenue, between Henry street and Greenkill avenue, will be invited to meet with the board of public works at a special meeting to be held Friday evening, June 2, in the mayor's office in the city hall, it was announced today.

The meeting is called for the purpose of outlining to the property owners methods and costs of piping the brook.

Three plans have been drafted by Sanitary Engineer Edward I. McCaffery to take care of the problem. The first is for laying concrete pipe; second, building a stone masonry wall with a concrete slab on top, and third by building a reinforced concrete culvert with a concrete cover on the culvert.

Estimates of cost of the various projects have been prepared by Mr. McCaffery and will be submitted at the meeting.

The decision to invite the property owners to meet with the board was made at an informal meeting of the board Tuesday afternoon when they visited Meade street and inspected the "house in the middle of the road."

Mayor Heiselman said today that he was in favor of moving the house back off the street, and that the matter will be taken up at a meeting to be held within the next few days.

extensive improvements, beginning with the erection of three additional buildings this year, and plan an expansion campaign each year.

The sale was consummated through the Mann & Gross agency. This same agency also reports several other important transactions.

Among the transactions is the 40-acre tract, a part of the Fischer farm at Plutarch, which has been sold to Miss Ruth Moore of Chicago who will build a large ranch style house.

An 80-acre fruit, dairy and general farm which they recently acquired in Port Ewen has been sold to Jerome Alexander of New York city. Cedar Grove Farm on the edge of Saugerties village has been sold to John and DeEtia Knox of Freeport, L. I.

The seven-acre pine grove and quarry property at Stony Hollow has been sold by Hudson Counties Estates, Inc., to Thomas Conlon of Stony Hollow.

A restaurant and gas station site at the junction of the River Road and 9-W has been sold by William Hogan to Marion Conrad of Brooklyn by the Mann & Gross Agency.

A restaurant and gas station on the Rosendale road just beyond the city limits has been sold by Hudson Counties Estates, Inc., to Joseph Yerry who formerly operated a dairy and general farm at West Shokan. Mr. Yerry will make improvements to the property and plans to develop the 16-acre tract.

water pressure outside, the hatch is sprung open and a buoy, connected to the submarine with a knotted line, is released.

One by one, the men leave the submarine and let themselves slide slowly up the line toward the surface.

As each rises, air escapes from the "lung" so that when he reaches the surface he is breathing under ordinary atmospheric conditions.

Navy officials here shared the anxious optimism of President Roosevelt, who told reporters yesterday that he was definitely hopeful that those aboard the Squalus could be saved.

The President received frequent reports on the situation from the navy department.

Telegrams were sent to relatives of all those aboard the Squalus by Read Admiral J. O. Richardson, chief of the bureau of navigation. He assured the relatives that "everything will be exerted to save all on board."

he drove a truck loaded with strawberries from Virginia through the red traffic light at East Chester street and Hasbrouck avenue. At the time of his arrest he furnished $5 bail for his appearance in court this morning.

When he failed to appear the bail was forfeited by the court. Kollman was on his way to the Albany market with his load of strawberries.

Mildred DiBenio Granted Divorce

Mildred C. DiBenio has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Henry DiBenio, it was learned today. The action came on before Justice Foster at Monticello on April 28, Earle H. Houghtaling of Walden appearing for the plaintiff. Married at Matamoras, Pa., on July 20, 1935, the plaintiff alleged in her complaint acts at Brunswick, Ulster county, on July 3, 1938, upon which she sought her decree. By the decree the plaintiff may resume her maiden name and is authorized to remarry but the decree forbids the defendant to again marry, except with the consent of the court.

Ten Days in Jail

Joseph Miller, 52, of 120 Spruce street, Poughkeepsie, was arrested by State Trooper Andrew Klein on a disorderly conduct charge and given 10 days in the county jail by Justice of the Peace Walter E. Seaman of Highland. Officer Clarke brought Miller to jail.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile isn't flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores 10c and 25c.

Have You Forgotten What an Automobile is for?

YOU SEE IT HAPPEN any Saturday or Sunday... on almost every road.

There's a gay toot-toot behind you... a rush of wind... a flash of waving hands.

And it's another new Nash! Packed with people, picnic baskets, and fishing rods... and there's a quiver of excitement in the air.

If yours is a wistful eye... if it makes you feel a little bit old to see it—don't blame yourself. You've just forgotten what an automobile is for.

But a new Nash will tell you! It won't let you dawdle over the Sunday papers. Just looking at its rakish lines pulls you right out of the house.

You get in the front seat—and you're lost. For you want to try that new gearshift* again... you want to see if this time you can hear the engine running.

And suddenly you hear the click of the Fourth Speed Forward*, and you're spirited out of town... alone on an open road, with the rest of the pack far behind you.

So you turn a little dial and head for rough country just for the fun of feeling again how you sweep over bumps the other cars are bobbing over... just to see how the "Weather Eye"* makes dusty air pure.

Likely as not, you'll end up in some lovely spot you haven't seen for years. Stay if you want, there's even a convertible bed in a Nash.

But it doesn't make much difference where you go. Even bringing home the kids from school can be a privilege the whole family will fight for!

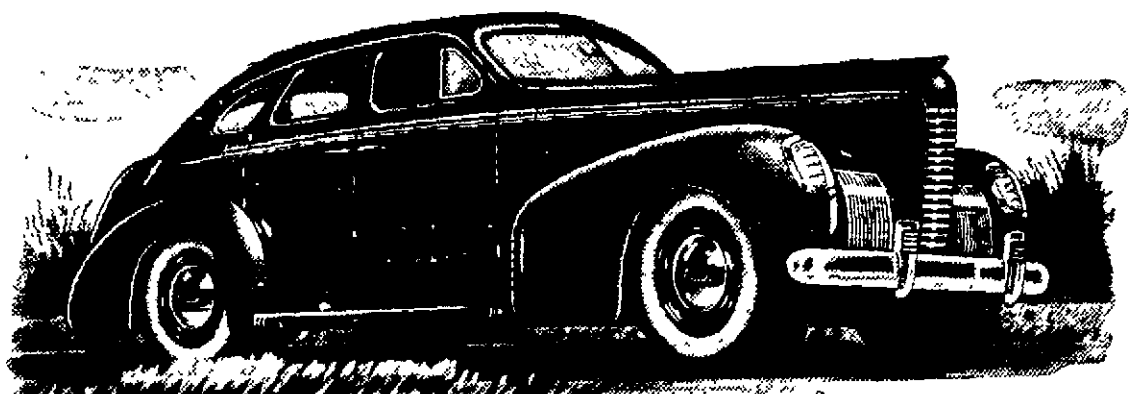

Drive a Nash for 15 minutes; and we predict it will become so much a part of you that you'll never want to give it up.

That makes it yours—for hundreds of dollars less than you imagine. Ten models are priced right next to the lowest... models that won the cup for economy in their price class in the 1939 Gilmore-Yosemite Run, with 21.25 miles to the gallon! And heaven only knows—a Nash never gives up!

A new Nash is waiting for you now. The engine is running. Bring down the family and go for a glorious afternoon.

Dairymen Discuss New Plan; Appeals Decision Awaited

Albany, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—Spokesmen for New York's dairymen discussed anew today a plan to halt further price reductions as the Court of Appeals scheduled a review of invalidation of the state's milk control law.

Representatives of the Federation of Independent Producers, informed they must organize as a bargaining agency, placed before Agriculture Commissioner Holton V. Noyes, a plan to curb "ruinous" prices.

At the same time, the state's highest tribunal was scheduled to hear arguments today, delayed from last week, on the state's appeal from Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergan's February 22 ruling that sections of the Rogers-Allen producer-distributor law were unconstitutional.

Noyes called this week for "willing and complete cooperation" in an effort to reestablish milk control and set up a system of production control.

Mayor Proclaims May 27 Poppy Day

Saturday, May 27, was proclaimed "Poppy Day" in Kingston in a proclamation issued today by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman. The proclamation urged all citizens to honor the World War dead and aid the war's living victims by wearing a memorial poppy on that day.

The proclamation reads: "Whereas, in the World War of 1917-1918 the young men and women gave their service to the defense of the United States in an exalted spirit of patriotism and some were called upon to sacrifice their lives in that service; and

"Whereas, many others were called upon to sacrifice health and strength, with resulting suffering and hardship to themselves and their families which continues in many cases to this day; and

"Whereas, the memory of these patriotic sacrifices ever should be kept fresh in the minds of patriotic citizens, while full generous aid should be extended to those still within reach of human aid; and

"Whereas, the wearing of the Memorial Poppy both honors the dead and aids the disabled and dependents;

"Therefore, I, Conrad J. Heiselman, mayor of the city of Kingston, do hereby proclaim Saturday, May 27, Poppy Day in the city of Kingston and urge all citizens to observe the day by wearing a Memorial Poppy, which will be sold by the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN, Mayor.

elapsing between the time a diver first reached the deck of the sunken submarine at 10:22 o'clock this morning, and the actual lowering of the huge bell from the deck of the Falcon.

Many shares were 1 to around 3 higher near the final hour and approximately at peak levels of the recovery from the April lows. Steels and motors were conspicuous but virtually all sections of the list participated in the rise.

Deals more than doubled on the upturn, setting a pace of about 900,000 shares for a full session.

Making the vanguard of the advance were such stocks as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Telephone, American Carbide, Eastman, Goodrich and Youngstown Sheet.

In the curb, Aluminum of America jumped more than 6. Other strong issues included Lockheed, Standard Steel Spring and Great Atlantic.

Much of the buying in stocks, brokers explained, was based on the assumption that the spring decline of industry largely had run its course, with fair prospect of a recovery turn in the summer. The boost in steel schedules this week was cited as evidence the decline had been checked.

At the same time a new message came from the men trapped in the ocean floor, and the Falcon flashed:

"Squalus reports conditions comfortable and satisfactory."

Even as hurried preparations were made to lower a diving bell—to be used as an escape chamber—another message came from the rescue ship. It was believed 26 of the nearly three score men already had perished.

Through code signals from the trapped craft it was learned that those in the forward compartments had been able to accustom themselves to the cramped quarters. The rescue ship reported that the Squalus was in the process of being lowered.

As the first diver landed on the Squalus, a message was flashed from the submarine rescue ship Falcon that he would attempt to "attach a down haul (line) for the use of a rescue chamber."

Weak messages were received through the postdaylight hours, this morning from the submerged men, the last shortly before 9 a. m. (EDT).

Portsmouth, N. H., May 24 (AP)—The submarine rescue craft Falcon, spearhead of a flotilla at the spot where the submarine Squalus was lost, reported today that the bottom off the Isle of Shoals, arrived at the rescue scene shortly after 4:30 a. m. today (EST).

Navy men said the huge rescue craft would require more than two hours to get into strategic position over the sunken Squalus, and to expedite their movements, officials ordered small craft cleared from the area over a distance of 700 square yards.

At 6 a. m. (E. S. T.) a naval spokesman said "the next hour may tell the story." By that, he explained, he meant that efforts would be made to establish definite communication with the submerged vessel, to learn how the men came through the night and to make arrangements for the rescue.

While the Falcon maneuvered into position, 16 of the navy's craft divers prepared to descend 240 feet to the ocean floor to make ready for a rescue by means of the navy's new "rescue bell."

Ready hands prepared to lower the nine-ton chamber with which rescuers hoped to bring the entrapped men to the surface eight at a time.

While other rescue craft had awaited the Falcon, Admiral C. W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard had ordered divers to go down to survey the escape hatches of the Squalus to expedite the rescue.

"Blowing Out" Abandoned

His instructions caused abandonment of earlier tentative plans to "blow" the air out of the Squalus and float her with the 59 imprisoned men aboard. Lieutenant Commander Charles B. Momen, inventor of the Momen lung, was designated to take charge of all diving operations.

The divers whose first task will be to attach the huge rubber cup of the rescue bell to one of the stricken submarine's four escape hatches, studied similar hatches on the submarine Sculpin, sister craft of the Squalus, anchored at the scene.

It will be the first use of the new escape chamber in actual rescue operations. The device was brought here by the Falcon.

Piercing the mists of the morning over the slightly choppy sea, were large lights which will serve as the "eyes" of the divers as they descend to the depths.

Admiral C. W. Cole previously had ordered the imprisoned men taken off the Squalus in the bell as the first step in the rescue efforts. He had ordered divers to descend and survey the hatches of the Squalus to expedite the rescue work.

The weather remained overcast, although rain, which fell during the night, stopped about dawn. A light southwest wind kicked up a slight chop on the surface of the sea but officers said it would not hamper the rescue task.

Destroyer at Scene

The destroyer Semmes was at the scene equipped with underwater detector equipment for use in coordinating the work of the divers with the bell while the cruiser Brooklyn was on her way.

Also at the scene, beside the Sculpin and Falcon, were four Coast Guard boats and several tugs.

Admiral Cole's instructions to use the escape bell caused aban-

Phoenicia, May 24.—Justin L. Bishop died May 15 at his home in Coeymans. He was a cousin of Mrs. A. Perry Loomis of Phoenicia. He was born and brought up in the town of Olive. Business associations placed him at Coeymans, where he was president of the Roach Hook Brick Company and treasurer of the Sutton & Suddery Co. He retired from business in December, 1937. He was a Masonic leader and was past master of Onequethau Lodge, a member of Cyprus Temple of the Shrine and a past grand representative of the grand lodge of the state. He was also a member of the Fort Orange Club and the Albany Country Club. He was a member and officer of the Coeymans Dutch Reformed Church. His funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at his home and were conducted by a former pastor and the present pastor of the Reformed Church and the Rev. Elmer Cates of Trinity Methodist Church, New York.

Military honors were accorded Lewis J. Brooks at the funeral rites held for him this morning from St. Joseph's Church. A veteran of the Spanish-American War the deceased was honored by five veterans who acted as casket bearers. The requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Edmund E. Burke. The children's choir sang the responses under the direction of the church organist Mrs. Frank Rafferty. The services were largely attended by relatives and the many friends of the Brooks family.

One of the chief difficulties in rescue operations was the great pressure that the 240-foot depth, equal to about 120 pounds to the square inch. It was for that reason also, apparently, that Lieutenant Naquin advised against immediate use of the Momen lung.

All through the long, squally night men aboard the rescue ship tapped out cheering messages to the imprisoned men in the Squalus. There was an occasional answering tap, but so far as could be learned ashore no definite messages could be interpreted.

Naquin, in his conversation, was of the first belief that he would bring his ship to the surface intact if a diver would bring an air line down to expel the water from its after compartments and permit the Squalus to rise normally.

The scene of the accident is not far from the point off Provincetown, Mass., where the ship was taken down in 1927 with a loss of 40 lives. The new escape bell, the Momen lung and numerous other safety devices have been developed since that tragedy.

Immediately after the Sculpin sighted the marker buoy and announced that the ship was on the verge of its strength on the scene by forced draft. Divers speeded from Washington to Newport, R. I. and then through Boston to Portsmouth.

Church Welcomes Rev. D. L. Doherty

The congregation of the Roundout Presbyterian Church gave their new minister, the Rev. D. L. Doherty and his wife and family, a reception in the chapel of the church, last evening. The arrangements for the welcome reception had been made by the Ladies Aid Society of the church.

The Rev. Mr. Doherty and his family were extended a welcome not only from the members of his own congregation, but from the neighboring churches on Wurts street, where greetings of the other churches were extended by their pastors.

The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Fred H. Deming, of Trinity M. E. Church; the Rev. Russell G. Gaenzle of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Spaulding.

All the pastors extended the best wishes of their congregations to the new pastor and to the members of the church.

A musical program arranged by Mrs. Harry G. Smith, organist and choir director of the church was given. The program opened with two soprano solos, "O Dry Those Tears," and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" sung by Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston with violin obligato by Mr. Johnson with Mrs. Smith at the piano.

A trio composed of Mrs. Ethel Wood, Mrs. Mortimer Downer and Mrs. Warren Ingalsbee sang a special arrangement of "Sweet and Low," which was followed by a duet "The Bacchante" from Tales of Hoffman, sung by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Ingalsbee.

Mrs. Wood gave two solos "Tis the Day" and "At Dawning," which brought the musical program to a close.

Attorney Dorr E. Monroe presided at the reception and introduced the speakers and vocalists. The closing remarks were made by the Rev. Mr. Doherty in a witty address of thanks.

Mrs. John B. Sterley in behalf of the congregation presented Mrs. Doherty with a huge bouquet of roses, while smaller bouquets were presented by Miss Anna Van Deusen to the Doherty girls, Betty and Anna Jean, and to the Rev. Mr. Doherty's mother and his aunt.

Following the presentation, the Ladies Aid served refreshments. Tables, artistically decorated with cut flowers, had been placed about the chapel, which was trimmed with spring flowers, and the guests were seated at the tables when served with the refreshments.

The Rev. Mr. Doherty is the 14th pastor to serve the church during the 106 years of its existence in the city. He came to Kingston after serving a 14-years pastorate in the Presbyterian Church in Milford, N. J., and was installed as pastor of the local church last Thursday by the North River Presbytery.

The Roundout Presbyterian Church was organized in 1833.

Brown expressed willingness to confer with Dewey individually.

Hollywood Expects An Eye-Opener

By The AP Feature Service
A young lady from one of France's "first families" may be the next film star to draw braves from American audiences. Corinne Luchaire, an 18-year-old blonde star of the current English-made picture, "Prison Without Bars," is being claimed by Alexander Korda as his "latest discovery." Korda is the man who first projected such stars as Charles Laughton, Merle Oberon, Binnie Barnes, Robert Donat and Sabu. In spite of her youth, Corinne is well-known to French film and stage audiences. Daughter of Jean Luchaire, the Paris newspaper publisher, and Francoise Besnard-Luchaire, the French painter, Corinne made her first stage hit at 16 in "Altitude, 3200," a play written by her grandfather. She speaks perfect English and, according to United Artists officials, may soon be cast in a Hollywood film.

Jones Dairymen Defeat Boiceville Rangers in City League 4-0

Julius Chick Gives 1 Hit in 4 Innings Zoller Nicked for 8

Berardi and Misove Crash Out Twin Bingles—Rain Halts Game in Fourth Frame

Jones Dairy trimmed the Boiceville Rangers by a 4-0 count in a four-inning City League tussle last night at the Athletic Field. Old Jupe Pluvius, who has played havoc with the two-circuit, interrupted a hard-fought fray in the fourth by letting loose the flood gates for the second successive contest. With two runs across and two out, Umpire Dick Dulin tossed in the towel as the Dairy-men racked up their second league conquest.

Big Julius Chick got the nod for his first start and turned in a one-hitter in the four-inning route. Al Davis opened the fray with a ringing double, but thereafter Chick got the Rangers down in apple-pie order. The tusk right-hander fogged his blazer past five Rangers and walked two as he completely dominated the hapless Knappens. Chick fanned the side in the last inning to top the night's mound efforts.

Budd Zoller's assortment of slow stuff was soundly belted for eight timely bingles over the curtailed stretch. Zoller's "waltz-time curves" and "dipsy-doodlers" resulted in twin tallies for the Milkmen in the second and fourth chapters. Zoller fanned one and issued no free tickets but was no meal-ticket for the hungry Rangers.

Jones Tally

With one gone in the second, Milly Berardi lashed a line single to left and plinkered second. Berardi rode home on Paulie Misove's base knock to show right. Chick singled and went to second as Bob Naussbaum heaved wildly past third and Misove talied on the miscue. J. Berardi popped to Bush to end the frame. "Boiceville made a bid to jump off in front in the first when Al Davis rammed Chick's pitch for a line double to left. Hughes sucked a walk but poor base running cost the Rangers plenty. Bob Naussbaum's attempted sacrifice popped to Celuch who muffed the apple. Hughes clung to first and made a delayed break to second but Celuch recovered his composure to nip the runner on a toss to Van Derzee. The play stymied the Ranger rally and Bush and Dehrosky went out to throttle the threat.

Two More Tallies

Jones Dairy added two more counters in the fourth before Jupe Pluvius broke up the ball game. Milly Berardi led off with his second safe slap, stole second, went to third on Misove's slow roller down the third base stripe and tallied on Chick's long fly to center. Misove tapped the triangle when Johnny Berardi rapped a double to center. Berardi stole third but with two strikes on Tommy Berardi, Umpire Dick Dulin surrendered the diamond ball to the rain gods. Their batting eyes at Buddy Zoller's expense as the Berardi brothers, Milly and Johnny and Paulie Misove crashed out twin bingles apiece. Doubles by Johnny Berardi and Zadany rocked Zoller's slow slants. Both teams, for a change, flashed fine defensive form afield but the old demon rain wrecked things.

Bleacher Blarney

Chick retired the Rangers on five pitched balls in the second. Umpire Dick Dulin and Sikes to fly to right and tap to the box and whiffed Al Naussbaum on three sizzlers through the groove. No wasted effort there.

Ray Schneider came up with a neat stab of Celuch's Jones cutter in the first to rob the grass third sacker of a sure base knock. Schneider looks good at the hot corner in Boiceville's new infield set-up.

Tony Debrosky made his debut with the Rangers. The former Kyanize gardener must have been dreaming of fonder days on Misove's blooper. Tony came in for the pill like a sleep-walker as the pellet landed safely for a hit.

Bush to Oppose Celuch or Brown in Two-Loop Contest

Jones Dairy, making the second straight start, opens the second round of the City League first half pennant duel by opposing the Kingston Independents tonight at 6:15. The Dairy-men, losers by a 1 count in the first "crucial" battle, will be out to turn the tables tonight. Jack Dawkins' crew, out in front for the first half flag, are confident of tripping the butter and egg boys for the second time.

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush will flip his assorted hooks and high hard one for the Indies while Ad Jones' gang will bank on either George Celuch or Joe Brown to stop the merchants. The famed Kyanize powerhouse of Maines, Rider, Stumpf, Van Etten and Lay has been blasting opposing hurlers ruthlessly. Jones lost the first fray due to errors in the opening inning but throttled the Independents thereafter. With both teams in fine shape, the season's best twilight circuit clash should result, starting at 6:30.

Maroon Tossers

Play Newburgh Here on Friday

Another important link in the DUSO League baseball schedule is Friday afternoon at the Athletic Field where Kingston plays host to Newburgh. Howie Brooks will do the flinging for the Maroons.

Upsetting the dope chart last week, the men of Coaches Miller and Whiston whacked the Middletown pitchers for 15 hits in a decisive 14 to 4 triumph. The question now is will Newburgh stop Kingston? If any team is going to do the trick, Newburgh will be the club.

Miller has already announced that Howard Brooks, lefthanded pitching ace, will do the hurling against the Goldbacks. So far this year Brooks has pitched good ball in every game. Undoubtedly his biggest test will be on Friday. Pepping the Milkmen out of their batting slump of the last few weeks was Bill Gavis in the Middletown tractors. Bill whipped out two round-trippers, and also a single. Al Decker, Jimmy Ashdown and George Schirich were also instrumental in the win.

Planning Way to Finance Golfers

Hoylake, Eng., May 24 (AP)—The Royal and Ancient Golf Association was said today to be considering a scheme under which Great Britain and the United States would send teams to compete in each other's amateur golf championship every year.

The proposal is that the United States Golf Association would finance a team of four amateurs to go to Britain each spring for the British amateur and the Royal and Ancient likewise would pay the way of a British team to the United States amateur every fall. Each golf association now sends a team abroad every four years to compete in the Walker Cup matches.

There is general disappointment over here the Willie Turnesa did not come over for the British amateur. Supporters of the team scheme suggest that the addition of Turnesa, Johnny Fischer and Johnny Goodman to this week's field would have turned the tournament into a real world's championship.

Monticello Track Meet Cancelled

According to official word from Monticello, the track meet scheduled with Kingston for Saturday will be cancelled. The cancellation is due to the incompleteness of the stadium at that town. Following the report Coach G. Warren Kias immediately contacted other schools for a prospective meet. Port Jervis was called but nothing was definitely received. Then Kias called the authorities at Van Schuyler's School in Albany. So far the meet is on the fire.

Vines Moves Up In British Golf

Hoylake, Eng., May 24 (AP)—Elsworth Vines, playing in his first international golf tournament, moved into the third round of the British amateur championship today with a 4 and 3 victory over E. N. Ratcliffe.

The professional tennis player took four of the first five holes, lost one hole of his advantage before reaching the turn and then picked up another before closing out the match on the 15th green.

Woodstock Card Of Midget Races Sunday Afternoon

Woodstock, May 24—With the inaugural race an event of past history, and the fans still talking of the thrills encountered in the May 14th events the officials of Legion Speedway are preparing a card of races for Sunday, May 25, which they hope will surpass even the ones of the 14th.

With entries coming in from some of the outstanding drivers in midget racing, the fans can look for more breath-taking action than has ever been seen at the Woodstock oval. There will be new faces among the drivers, who are out to get a share of the increased purse which is being offered by the Speedway. As a special attraction there will be an event, which is closed to all Ulster county cars and drivers.

Among the early entries is one from Wes. Saegesser, the one-armed driver from Chicago, who won the main event at the last show. He will drive his high-powered Offenhauser. Carl Carlson of Albany will have his new outboard, which in tests has shown remarkable speed.

Chet Gibbons of Bellmore, L. I. who won second place in the final, will return, also Ed Buckley and Rufe Anderson. Rufe is expected to have his new Ford V-8 which is just being completed.

There will be no delays during races due to the absence of an ambulance as there will be two available.

With the track in the best of condition, records are expected to be lowered Sunday.

Time trials will start at 1 and the races at 2:30 p. m.

Speed Trials for Western Race

Indianapolis, May 24 (AP)—Fifteen drivers—one with the avowed purpose of setting two new speed records—wheeled their cars onto the Indianapolis motor speedway today for six hours of qualifying trials (1-7 p. m., CST) for the 500-mile race here Memorial Day.

Kelly Pettito of Los Angeles said he would try to break the records of 130.75 miles for a two-and-a-half-mile lap and 130.138 for a 10-mile qualifying run, set only last Saturday by Jimmy Snyder of Chicago.

Fifteen cars qualified Saturday and one Sunday. Seventeen starting places in the race remain to be filled. To be eligible, a car must go 10 miles at not less than 110 miles an hour, but only the fastest 33 will start.

Others ready for trials today included:

Baptists Trip Ulster Park 9-6

Amidst the heavy downpour last night the Wurts Street Men's Club defeated the Ulster Park representatives in a league contest, 9-6.

It was Ferd Voight who saved the game for the local outfit. With the bases jammed the batter sent a long towering fly out to deep center. Voight, with his back to the ball made a sensational catch to retire the side. The next inning he pounded a scorching double to net two runs and clinch the victory.

Tonight Wurts Street plays at Forsyth Park in a regular league game. All members are asked to be there by 6:15.

Regatta Meeting Thursday Night

A special meeting of the Kingston Power Boat Association will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the club rooms on Abel street.

Very important matters are to be discussed concerning the annual regatta to be held on the Rondout creek, July 9, at which time approximately 50 boats will compete in the various class races. Many of the racers finished in the Albany-New York grind.

Every member of the association is urged to be on hand to help arrange for this program to make it the outstanding sports event of the summer. Commodore Mower will begin the meeting promptly and all are urged to be on hand for the start of the session.

The Indianapolis Mystery

A car like this was the great mystery about last year's Indianapolis 500-mile race. It remained a mystery, because it was so long getting built it didn't have time to qualify for the race. The car is still puzzling auto drivers, but it won't be long, because three just like it are entered in the 27th Indianapolis event May 30. They belong to Harry Miller. The cars are different from others because their motors are at the rear. Miller's benzine buggies already have been timed at 120 m.p.h.

Forezzi-Leger Five Round Match Has Fistic Patrons Enthused for Friday Card

Boxing fans, attracted by the whole card for Friday night at the Municipal Auditorium, seem to be singling out the five rounder between Charlie Forezzi and Cliff Leger, the two boys who recently defeated Charlie Raigins, the Diamond Belt featherweight champion from Sagerties.

This bout is being picked over the two top notch matches between Dutch Williams of Newburgh vs. Frankie Baumgartner of Saratoga and Buddy Bookman of Hurleyville vs. Johnny Andrews, Albany, because both Forezzi and Leger showed plenty of improvement in their scraps against the Saugerties Bomber.

In his battle a week ago with Raigins, Forezzi looked better than ever. He ripped the little chocolate soldier with dynamic rights and lefts to the midsection that doubled him up, and made him yell quits before the fifth round came up. Raigins said he never met a puncher with the steam behind Forezzi's blows and he is qualified to make such a statement.

Raigins recently boxed in the national amateur tournament at San Francisco after battling his way to the Adirondack A. A. U. featherweight title, and winning the Diamond Belt crown last winter.

Leger also looked like a champ in his skirmish with the Honeyboy handled by Connie Lynch and should give Forezzi plenty of trouble when they begin duelling in the auditorium ring. Comments about the five out of the six scraps to be presented indicates a crowd, and the new low prices and ladies free night should help to swell the gathering of fistic patrons at the beautiful Broadway arena.

'Baseball Symbol Of America'—FDR

Cooperstown, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt called national-wide attention to the hundredth anniversary of baseball in a letter made public today by the National Baseball Museum.

The Museum and Doubleday Field, named for Major General Abner Doubleday, who "invented" the game at Cooperstown in 1839, will be dedicated June 12. The President's letter said: "It is most fitting that the history of our perennially popular sport should be immortalized in the National Baseball Museum at Cooperstown, where the game originated and where the first diamond was devised a hundred years ago."

"Baseball has become, through the years, not only a great national sport, but also the symbol of America as the melting pot. The players embrace all nationalities and national origins and the fans, equally cosmopolitan, make only one demand of them: Can they play the game?"

"It seems to me that the museum will be a place of special interest, particularly in this centennial year of baseball."

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)
They'll have to enlarge baseball's "doghouse" to make room for all the candidates who clamored for admission today.

Chief among the newcomers who won non-popularity contests were (a) the New York Yankees, (b) the Giants' Walter Brown, and (c) the Dodgers' Cletus (Boots) Poffenberger.

The Yanks are in for the simple reason that they're too good. Apparently it finally has been proven that the only thing that can stop them is the weatherman. The Cleveland Indians were the party of the second part yesterday in watching the world champions win again—spectacularly and with lots of homers.

This was the 12th straight victory and they did it by a 7-3 score.

Messrs. Henrich, Gordon, Dickey and Rolfe were the siege guns who pumped balls out of the park.

Looks as though Brown, the Giant pitcher, had carved a big niche for himself in the doghouse, the way Bill Terry made him stand out there and take it in that eighth inning uprising the Pirates put on.

Terry waived his bullpen pitchers to quit warming up, and so Walter dodged a hail of baseballs, good for eight runs, that enabled the Pirates to win by 13-4.

Brother Poffenberger, the other nominee, seems to have moved permanently to the kennels. Manager Leo Durocher slapped a pair of $200 fines on him for keeping late hours and insubordination and the only thing the eccentric righthander could say offhand was: "I know I'm stubborn but I'm not going to the game."

Apparently the Cincinnati Reds were just as stubborn, only they all attended the fray and won from the bootless Dodgers by 3-2.

Nova and Baer Both Look Good

New York, May 24 (AP)—Lou Nova, most promising of the young heavyweights, had about shaken off a troublesome cold as he and Max Baer, the former playboy champion, settled down today to their final week of training for next Wednesday night's 15-round elimination bout at Yankee Stadium.

Lou contracted his cold while riding elephants and chinning the bar with a family of monkeys all one cold afternoon for the benefit of the photographers at Nyack, N. Y.

Promoter Jacobs got his worst scare: the time Lou boxed with a trained elephant. They had strapped a glove on the end of the animal's trunk and the two of them were having a big time until the prize fighter slipped and partially fell. Whereupon Jumbo let loose a swing that had it landed, would have taken Nova's head right off at the hinge. Promoter Jacobs nearly swallowed his teeth.

But nothing more serious has happened, and it looks like the two husky Californians will reach the ring in prime condition. Baer has put in a month's hard work at Fernald, N. Y., and looks good. Nobody knows exactly, though, how much the careless years have taken from his once magnificent constitution.

Jim Braddock, the ex-champion, has roved so steadily about Lou lately that the odds in favor of Baer have begun to drop. The most popular opinion now seems to be that Max will have to win by a knockout in the early rounds. Nova figures to out-wrestle him over the long haul.

St. Joseph's Drill

St. Joseph's softball team will hold a practice Thursday evening on the upper diamond at Forsyth Park in preparation for the Catholic League game with St. Peter's Friday night. Sunday the up-towners will play a double-header with Napanoch Institution there.

Davey Day Stops Pedro Montanez

New York, May 24 (AP)—Henry Armstrong puts his world welterweight championship on the block against Ernie Roderick in London tomorrow, and as far as the opposition left on this side goes, he might as well let Ernie have it. Henry is likely to have a hard time finding a profitable welter fight if he comes back with the crown. Apparently there's nobody much left but Davey Day, and Armstrong already has licked Davey.

Day, a technical knockout victim of Ilanmering Hank in March, turned around and did the same thing to Pedro Montanez in eight rounds at Madison Square Garden last night. The Puerto Rican, considered the No. 1 title contender, succumbed to a badly cut left eye and a steady pounding after 2 minutes and 39 seconds of the eighth. Referee Frank Fullan called a halt to prevent serious eye injury.

As a result Day, who gave Armstrong a good battle until he was too badly cut to finish, probably will get another title shot. Even if Armstrong loses the title, Roderick has agreed to come here for his first title defense.

Jones Dairymen Defeat Boiceville Rangers in City League 4-0

Julius Chick Gives 1 Hit in 4 Innings Zoller Nicked for 8

Berardis and Misove Crash Out Twin Bingles—Rain Halts Game in Fourth Frame

Jones Dairy trimmed the Boiceville Rangers by a 4-0 count in a four-inning City League tussle last night at the Athletic Field. Old Jupe Pluvius, who has played havoc with the two-circuit, interrupted a hard-fought fray in the fourth by letting loose the flood gates for the second successive contest. With two runs across and two out, Umpire Dick Dulin tossed in the towel as the Dairymen racked up their second league conquest.

Big Julius Chick got the nod for his first start and turned in a one-hitter in the four-inning route. Al Davis opened the fray with a ringing double but thereafter Chick set the Rangers down in apple-pie order. The blazer right-hander fogged his blazer past five Rangers and walked two as he completely dominated the hapless Knappmen. Chick fanned the side in the last inning to top the night's mound efforts.

Budd Zoller's assortment of slow stuff was soundly belted for eight timely bingles over the curtailed stretch. Zoller's "waltz-time curves" and "dipsy-dodders" resulted in twin tallies for the Milkmen in the second and fourth chapters. Zoller fanned one and issued no free tickets but was no meal-ticket for the hungry Rangers.

Jones Tally

With one gone in the second, Milly Berardis lashed a line single to left and pilfered second. Berardis rode home on Paulie Misove's base knock to short right. Chick singled and went to second as Bob Naussbaum heaved wildly past third and Misove trailed on the misce. J. Berardis popped to Bush to end the frame. Boiceville made a bid to jump off in front in the first when Al Davis rammed Chick's pitch for a line double to left. Hughes sucked a walk but poor base running cost the Rangers plenty. Bob Naussbaum's attempted sacrifice popped to Celuch who muffed the apple. Hughes clung to first and made a dazed break to second but Celuch recovered his composure to nip the runner on a toss to Van Derzee. The play stymied the Ranger rally and Bush and Debrosky went out to throttle the threat.

Two More Tallies

Jones Dairy added two more counters in the fourth before Jupe Pluvius broke up the ball game. Milly Berardis led off with his second safe slap, stole second, went to third on Misove's slow roller down the third base stripe and tallied on Chick's long fly to center. Misove tapped the triangle when Johnny Berardis rapped a double to center. Berardis stole third but with two strikes on Tommy Berardis, Umpire Dick Dulin surrendered the diamond duel to the rain gods.

Bleacher Blarney

Chick retired the Rangers on five pitched balls in the second. Fly got Schneider and Sickles to fly to right and tap to the box and whiffed Al Naussbaum on three sizzlers through the groove. No wasted effort there. Ray Schneider came up with a neat stab of Celuch's grass cutter in the first to rob the Jones third sacker of a sure base knock. Schneider looks good at the hot corner in Boiceville's new infield set-up.

Tony Debrosky made his debut with the Rangers. The former Kyanize gardener must have been dreaming of fonder days on Misove's blower. Tony came in for the pill like a sleep-walker as the pellet landed safely for a hit.

Bush to Oppose Celuch or Brown in Two-Loop Contest

Jones Dairy, making the second straight start, opens the second round of the City League first half pennant duel by opposing the Kingston Independents tonight at 6:15. The Dairymen, losers by a 5-1 count in the first "crucial" battle, will be out to turn the tables tonight. Jack Dawkins' crew, out in front for the first half flag, are confident of tripping the butter and egg boys for the second time.

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush will flip his assorted hooks and high hard one for the Indies while Ad Jones' gang will bank on either George Celuch or Joe Brown to stop the merchants. The famed Kyanize powerhouse of Maines, Rider, Stumpf, Van Etten and Lay has been blasting opposing hurlers ruthlessly. Jones lost the first fray due to errors in the opening inning but throttled the Independents thereafter. With both teams in fine shape, the season's best twilight circuit clash should result, starting at 6:30.

Cooperstown, N. Y., May 24 (P)—President Roosevelt called baseball the "symbol of America" in a letter made public today by the National Baseball Museum.

The Museum and Doubleday Field, named for Major General Abner Doubleday, who "invented" the game at Cooperstown in 1839, will be dedicated June 12.

The President's letter said: "It is most fitting that the history of our perennially popular sport should be immortalized in the National Baseball Museum at Cooperstown, where the game originated and where the first diamond was devised a hundred years ago."

Baseball has become, through the years, not only a great national sport, but also the symbol of America as the melting pot. The players embrace all nations and the fans, equally cosmopolitan, make only one demand of them: Can they play the game?

It seems to me that the museum will be a place of special interest, particularly in this centennial year of baseball."

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

They'll have to enlarge baseball's "doghouse" to make room for all the candidates who clamored for admission today.

Chief among the newcomers who won non-popularity contests were (a) the New York Yankees, (b) the Giants' Walter Brown, and (c) the Dodgers' Cletus (Boots) Poffenberger.

The Yanks are in for the simple reason that they're too good. Apparently it finally has been proven that the only thing that can stop them is the weatherman. The Cleveland Indians were the party of the second part yesterday in watching the world champions win again—spectacularly and with lots of homers.

This was the 12th straight victory and they did it by a 7-3 score.

Messrs. Henrich, Gordon, Dickey and Rolfe were the siege gunners who pumped balls out of the park.

Looks as though Brown, the Giant pitcher, had carved a big niche for himself in the doghouse. The way Bill Terry made him stand out there and take it in that eighth inning uprising the Pirates put on.

Terry waved his bullpen pitchers to quit warming up, and so Walter dodged a hail of baseballs, good for eight runs, that enabled the Pirates to win by 13-4.

Brother Poffenberger, the moved nominee, seems to have moved permanently to the kennels. Manager Leo Durocher slapped a pair of $200 fines on him for keeping late hours and insubordination and the only thing the eccentric right-hander could say offhand was: "I know I'm stubborn but I'm not going to the game."

Apparently the Cincinnati Reds were just as stubborn, only they attended the fray and won from the bootless Dodgers by 3-2.

Godfrey Reports Milk Cases Began Among Children

Albany, May 24 (AP) (Special)—

The first 15 of the more than 500 cases of septic sore throat in the Saugerties vicinity were discovered in Malden among school children, May 5, it was stated officially today by Dr. Edward S. Godfrey, Jr., state commissioner of health.

Dr. Godfrey stresses the fact that within two hours after it was determined that raw milk had been the source of the outbreak, health authorities discovered the cow which was spreading the disease and ordered the animal killed.

Three deaths were reported resulting from the disease, and it was stated that the outbreak involved 502 persons of whom 324 were over 15 years of age and 178 children under 15. The distribution of the cases was as follows: Village of Saugerties 168, Malden 95, West Camp, 52, Cementon, 64 and Aisen 33. The remainder of the cases were scattered.

On the day after the outbreak was discovered in the school, it was determined that it was due to raw milk distributed by one dealer and at 3 o'clock that afternoon the cow was discovered by Dr. James C. Crandall, Saugerties veterinarian, and Dr. Fred M. Graves, milk sanitarian of the State Department of Health.

The animal was immediately removed from the production line. On May 16 the cow was slaughtered. Meanwhile the investigation was carried on, all milk and cream from the suspected dairy was required to be pasteurized, and the collection, distribution and handling of the milk was carefully checked.

The disease was reported as streptococcal pharyngitis. Each of the three persons who died as the result of the outbreak was of advanced years. While the last reports show a total of 502 cases, it is estimated that the outbreak will have a maximum of 600 cases. "The peak of the epidemic was reached on the day that the milk supply was required to be pasteurized and declined rapidly after that date," Dr. Godfrey said. "Investigation disclosed that at least 455 patients consumed milk secured from the one dealer, thus represented 91 per cent of all of the septic sore throat cases investigated in view of the history of the milk used, the explosive nature of the outbreak and the wide distribution of cases which coincided exactly with the milk delivery route, there can be no doubt that milk was the vehicle of infection and as nearly as can be determined the cases are attributable only to the use of raw milk."
